BRITISH BOMBS RAKE NARVIK

Test Of Aviation Knowledge

Twelve weeks of ground school instruction over, 45 prospective Mansfield aviators took Civil Aeronautics examinations last night. At top, Betty Thompson (left) and Denise Lugthart struggle over the "plenty tough" questions. Bottom picture shows students handing examination papers to James R "Bud" Harrington, instructor in the course. Left to right, Louis Nixon, Thelma Kennedy, Richard Maxwell and Norma Johnston. There were six girls among the 45 students. The 10 who pass with highest grades will be given flying instruction, if they can pass a tough physical exam.

START INQUIRY INTO 3 MAJOR CRIME CASES

Richland Grand Jurors Convene to Investigate Robbery and Arson Charges.

50 WITNESSES TO TESTIFY

Prosecutor Says He'll Seek 12 Open Indictments and Two Secret Bills.

A new grand jury convened at the courthouse today to investigate at least 14 cases, including some of the most important to come before a grand jury here in recent months.

Prosecutor G. W. Marriott will ask open indictments in 12 of the cases. Two others will be submitted for secret indictments because the defendants are still at large. Nearly 50 witnesses are expected to go before the jury during the session which probably will require two days, court attaches said.

Holding the spotlight will be the jury's investigation of armed robbery charges against three Pennsylvania youths accused of slugging and robbing Philip Schmutzler, Mansfield cafe owner, in a daylight hold-up on Main street.

Also of major interest are cases involving Ray Taylor, Niles, Mich., and Stephen Janes, Burnham, Ill., former Indiana state prison inmates, who were captured near Mansfield last Thursday night after they had engaged in a gun battle with State Highway Patrolman W. C. Smith and Deputy Sheriff J. H. Hetler. The pair is charged with shooting with intent to ill.

Takes Up Arson Charge.

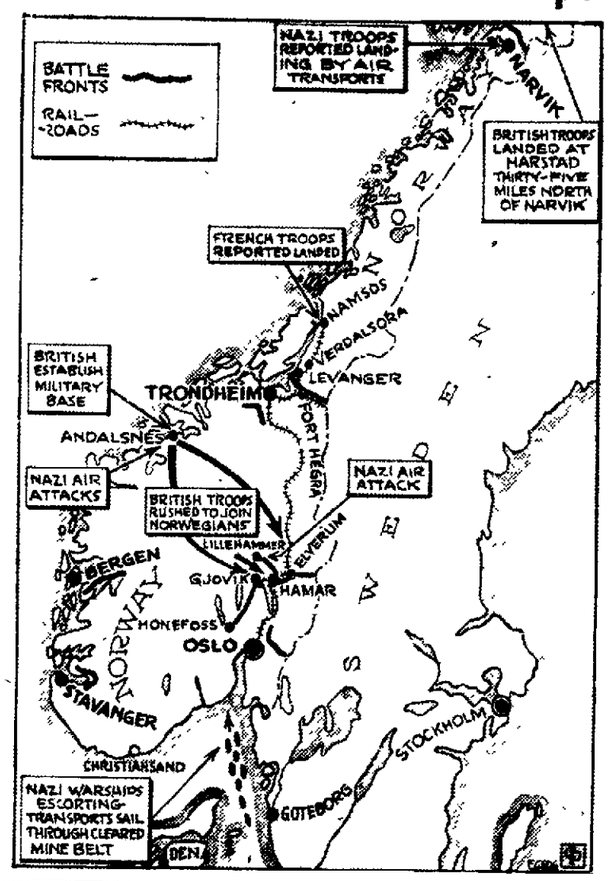

The jurors will consider an arson charge against John W. McGugin, Monroe township farmer, who allegedly burned four barns to collect $13,000 in insurance during the past 11 years.

Another case which will come before the jury is against Harold Rolf, Cleveland, accused of second degree manslaughter as the result of a fatal traffic accident about 10 days ago near Lexington.

Other cases on the docket and the defendants are:

Raymond E Jacobs, Ashland, accused of operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent; Robert Harper, non-support; Betty Bland, carrying concealed weapons; Edward Corson, grand larceny, and Henry Harfy, cutting with intent to wound.

Where Armies Come to Grips---U. S. Casualty

The map at the left shows the various centers of activity in the Scandinavian war as troops of four nations — England, France, Norway and Germany—come closer to grips for what may prove to be a major struggle in the European war. At the right is Capt Robert M Losey, U. S military attache in Norway, who was killed by a German bomb near the Norwegian town of Dombas. He was the first American casualty in the war.

MELLERUD, Swedish Frontier—(UP)—Allied airplanes bombed the Oslo airport for two and one-half hours early today in their first counter-blow at German forces in the Norwegian capital.

(By Associated Press)

The German high command acknowledged today that the British navy had opened fire on the far northern Norwegian ore port of Narvik. The population of the town apparently had taken to cover in response to an earlier British warning that Narvik would be shelled.

The Germans insisted that the British were making no effort to land troops, although it was presumed in neutral quarters that they would try to land forces after clearing the way.

Four hundred miles southward. British, French and Norwegian troops joined forces in an encircling movement against Trondheim, strategic railway terminus and port in German hands since the first day of invasion, April 9. To the east, near Hamar, 60 miles north of Oslo, bitter fighting continued with Allied reinforcements arriving to relieve the embattled Norwegians.

Take Final Steps To Acquire Sanitarium For T. B. Patients

Richland county officials took final steps today to acquire the Eleanor Thomas sanitarium on a monthly rental basis for a county convalescent home for tuberculosis patients.

County commissioners and the Tuberculosis advisory committee, headed by Dr. John S Hattery, at a meeting last night authorized Prosecutor G. W. Marriott to draw up a contract to rent the sanitarium for one year. The contract will not go into effect, however, until the state health department approves the sanitarium for county use.

Dr. Hattery, chairman of the advisory committee, said the agreement will be submitted to the state health department, which is expected to give its approval within a few days.

It was understood that the agreement figure was approximately $1,380 a month for 20 patients, or an average of $69 per patient.

The figure will cover every service the patient needs except the periodic examinations and treatment by Dr. Lincoln Fisher, county T. B phyisician, who is employed on a salary basis by the county.

The entire sanitarium, now operated by T. Amos Jones as a rest home, would be turned over to the county which will agree to have an average of 20 patients in the sanitarium throughout the year. A maximum of 30 patients can be cared for there.

It would be necessary to keep a few T. B. patients in state sanitariums outside the county where all of them are cared for under the present set-up.

The new program will be financed from the receipts of a half-mill tax levy which went into effect this year. It will provide about $40,000 a year for five years.

BACK IN JAIL

Mt. Gilead Fugitive, Free 18 Hours, Surrenders.

MT. GILEAD—Richard Roop, 19, of Mt. Vernon, one of two youths who walked away from the Morrow county jail, Sunday night was back in jail today after 18 hours of freedom.

Roop was returned here last night by Knox county authorities after he surrendered to Sheriff Clyde Biggs at Mt. Vernon at 3 p. m. yesterday.

Meanwhile authorities today were still trying to find some trace of Clyde Kelly, 16, of Mt. Gilead, who walked away from the jail with Roop after Roop, a trusty, unlocked the door of Kelly's cell.

Roop told Sheriff Biggs that he became separated from Kelly outside the jail and hiked across country to his home in Mt. Vernon. Learning his home was being watched by officers, he "borrowed" a neighbor's car and drove to Coshocton. Tire trouble and weakness from a recently broken leg discouraged him, he said, and he hitchhiked back to Mt. Vernon to surrender.

AT MOCK CONCLAVE

OBERLIN—(INS)—Grove E. Patterson, Toledo editor, who is slated to nominate Robert A. Taft at the Republican national convention, will speak at the opening of Oberlin college's 1940 Republican mock convention, May 10, it was announced today.

HIT ARROGANCE

Independent Republicans Lash Schorr, Vow Burton Aid.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Protesting against what they termed the "arrogance" of Ed Schorr, chairman of the state Republican executive committee, a group of independent Republicans disclosed today they would work for the nomination of Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland for U. S. senator.

Invitations to an organization meeting to be held Wednesday were sent out over the names of Murray Seasongood and Russell Wilson, both former Cincinnati mayors; Edgar Friedlander, Victory Heintz, Sanford Headley and Walter S. Schmidt.

All were stalwarts of the charter movement during its early years.

Schorr, speaking at a Republican rally here last week, threw his support to U. S. Rep. Dudley White of Norwalk.

Salesgirl's Ruse Scares Bandit Away In Hold-Up

GETS $110 IN SHELBY HOLD-UP

Lone Bandit Robs Liquor Store Clerk in Town's First Major Crime in Recent Years.

SHELBY—State highway patrolmen and police in neighboring cities today were looking for a lone bandit who held up a clerk in the state liquor store here at 8.30 last night and escaped with $110 from the cash register.

It was the first stick-up in Shelby in five years, police said, and was the first major crime here in recent years. Shelby had only a net loss of $1 in the first three months of this year from stolen property.

Merritt Winbigler, clerk on duty at the store on Shelby's Main street, less than two blocks from the police station, was in the store alone when the bandit entered.

Police said he asked Winbigler if the store sold wine. "No we don't," Winbigler told the youth, "but a store down the street does."

The youth then pulled a gun from under an old jacket he was wearing. He said "this is a stick-up." He then ordered Winbigler to clean out the cash register and to go to the back of the room.

Winbigler told officers that as he turned to go to the back of the room, the bandit ran out of the CHICAGO—(AP)—M. L. Annenberg, defendant in the largest criminal federal income tax case in history, peaded guilty today to evadingS1.217.296.73 of income taxes for the year 1936.

The plea by the wealthy Philadelphia publisher and former head of an international racing news empire was entered to the fifth count of an indictment accusing him of evading $3.258.809.97 in taxes for the years 1932 to 1936, inclusive.

Would-Be Robber Flees When Intended Victim Shouts 'Here Comes The Boss'; Two Others Menaced By Revolver.

A young saleslady who shouted, "Look out, here comes the boss," while a youthful bandit pointed a gun at her, frustrated an attempted hold-up at Samilson's, women's apparel shop at 63 North Main street, yesterday afternoon while another clerk and a woman customer cowed before the man's revolver.

"Just a little shaky" after the bandit had pocketed his gun and fled from the store without obtaining the money in the cash register, Miss Mildred DeWitt, 34 West Arch street, the assistant manager, related to police how she frightened the gunman away.

"I was waiting on a customer near the rear of the store when a bareheaded man wearing a sort of bluish sweater came in. There's nothing unusual about that because men often come in to pay their wives' bills," she related.

"All at once I heard him say 'hands up' I thought he was kidding and I just stood there holding a dress before me.

"I didn't move because he stepped towards me and moved the gun right up close. Sure it was a gun. I've seen them before but they never looked that large," she told the officers.

Miss DeWitt said the bandit waved his gun at her while she was thinking of some way out of the predicament. He demanded the money in the cash register at her elbow.

"About that time," she said, "Helen (Helen McCracken, another clerk) started toward the front door. She had been on the other side of the dress rack. That really frightened me because he shouted

FARMER INJURED

Lakeville Man Hurt as Auto Crashes Into Restaurant.

BIG PRAIRIE—Clarence Rush Lakeville farmer, suffered minor injuries when the car he was driving crashed into the front of a restaurant here yesterday causing damage estimated at $1,500 to the restaurant.

Rush's auto ran into the restaurant owned by E. R. Allspaugh, when he failed to negotiate a turn. Both the exterior and interior of the restaurant was damaged. Rush was taken to a Wooster hospital where he received treatment for shock.

SHOOTS WIFE

Sandusky Resident Rides Bike to Sheriff's Office.

SANDUSKY —(AP)— One of three revolver bullets fired through a window killed Mrs. Philip Mischler, 58, in her living room today and 15 minutes later her white-haired husband surrendered at the office of Sheriff William F. Souter.

"Mischler rode his bicycle to my office and asked me to lock him up for safekeeping," said Souter. "He didn't tell me why."

The sheriff said Mischler, under questioning, related he was under a doctor's care. Calling the doctor, Souter learned of the shooting. Police Capt. Thomas Ryan said the couple's daughter, Mrs. Estella Lublow, was in the room with her mother and named her father as the slayer.

The slightly-built Mischler, a millwright, stood on the front porch of the west side home and opened fire on his wife with a 32 caliber revolver, Ryan said. The couple had separated about two weeks ago.

SENTENCED

Wife Jailed Until Oct. 1 on Manslaughter charge.

AKRON —(UP)— Mrs. Maude Hubbard who pleaded guilty to a manslaughter charge Monday in connection with the fatal shooting of her husband, Harry, last Oct 10, was sentenced to spend until Oct. 1, 1940, in the county jail

Judge E. D. Fritch ruled that after her release, Mrs Hubbard will be on probation for three years.

GERMANS CLAIM MAJOR VICTORY

Report 'Crushing Defeat' Over Canadian Troops During Norwegian Battle.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN — The British expeditionary force to Norway has suffered a "crushing defeat" and thousands of troops, chiefly Canadians, have been wiped out in the Lillehammer sector, German military headquarters announced tonight

(A British news agency (Reuters) dispatch to London from Stockholm said today a fierce battle was reported raging in the heart of Norway for possession of the "gateway" to Oslo where the great Gudbrandsdal valley enters the southern plain near Lillenhammer.)

The main British detachments are now cut off in the interior of Norway from the landing ports of Andalsnes and Namsos, the announcement said.

Several hundred survivors of the Lillehammer battle have been taken prisoner, including a large number of Canadians, and are now en route to Berlin, it was said.

The announcement said that Canadian forces, sent into action for the first time since the war began, apparently were formed

The British repeated their aerial blows at German air bases in Norway and Denmark, aimed at keeping Nazi bombers and troop transports on the ground.

The air ministry said that incendiary bombs had started a large fire on an airfield at Fornebu, Norway, and that Aalborg, Danish terminus of Germany's aerial ferry system to Norway, also had been bombed again.

Contrary to German claims that four British aircraft were shot down in the air forays, the ministry said only one had failed to return.

Three British submarines, recently returned from North sea operations, were credited with having sunk nine or 10 German ships —including some carrying troops— totalling 35,000 to 45,000 tons.

As the Allies increased their pressure on the Germans in Norway, French military authorities in Paris said that the posi-

Paris Anti-Aircraft Batteries In Action.

PARIS — (INS — Anti-aircraft batteries in the Paris region went into action spasmodically during the night, searchlights swept the skies and droning planes were heard, but authorities declared today that no incidents had occurred.

Air raid alarms were sounded in various parts of France, indicating that German reconnaissance planes were active.

An artillery duel lasting several hours broke out in the Nied river section of the western front.

An attack by German detachments east of the Moselle, supported by German artillery, was broken up and repulsed with heavy losses to the Nazis, reports to Paris stated.

Monroe Doctrine Subject of Talk?

WARM SPRINGS, Ga.—(INS)—President Roosevelt and Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King had an appointment in the pine-sheltered seclusion of the "Little White House" here today that may have an important bearing on American interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine and "hemispherical defense."

The Canadian leader was arriving before noon by motor from Atlanta. He will remain in Warm Springs as a presidential house guest until tomorrow afternoon.

Increasingly threatening developments in the European war promised to occupy the attention of Mr Roosevelt and King. It was the first talk they have had since Canada became embroiled in the war abroad along with England and France.

Citizens Group Asks Public to Help Solve Traffic Problem

By LEWIS F. HARTMAN,
Chairman, Citizens' Committee on Traffic.

The Citizens' Committee on Traffic has already reached some tentative conclusions on various phases of the traffic situation. However, before making any definite recommendations to council, the committee first desires to invite discussion and suggestions from the general public on how these problems can best be solved.

Each week, one of our sub-committee chairmen will discuss in these columns the problems of his own committee. We, in turn need your suggestions and comments on these problems. We urge you therefore to write them to us, addressed Citizens Committee on Traffic, care of The News-Journal.

To start this discussion, let us first consider the parking situation, for that seems to be one of the most basic problems. The sub-committee on parking consists of ten men, and their discussions thus far indicate a strong sentiment in favor of parking meters. Briefly, their reasons are as follows:

First of all, the committee feels that one of the surest ways to eliminate our present congestion is to make parking easier. You have all driven block after block looking for a place to park, and when you multiply your individual experience by the number of cars in Richland county, you then realize that this unnecessary driving may be largely responsible for our over-crowded streets.

Another major cause of congestion is the double parking of cars and trucks. Yet here again the parking situation is to blame, for these vehicles would not be double-parked if space could be found at the curb.

Of course, many claim that parking could be made easier if we had absolute enforcement of a one-hour or forty-five minute limit, instead of the present two-hour period. This is undoubtedly true, but it is based on the assumption that we have the manpower to enforce it. This is not the case, for in Mansfield at the present time we have only one, two, and occasionally three police who can be

CHAPTER XXIII

"I hate to throw you out, Elaine," Eric said, rising from the bed. "But the truth of the matter is I would like to take a bath. It's been mighty hot today and these clothes are sticking to me. I must be a sight."

Elaine nodded her head and walked over to the door. "Come on down when you're finished," she invited. "I'm sure that Jane and Melvyn will forgive you."

His face fell as though he had just realized that he still had to pay for the altercation he had begun. Elaine watched him with anxious eyes, hoping he would prove a good sport about the whole thing.

"All right," he agreed with a smile. "And will you tell Jane that I'm very sorry?"

Elaine nodded her head as she closed the door. She ran down the steps again, but this time with none of the thoughts that had sped her up the whole three flights. Jane and Melvyn were seated on the couch when she walked into the living room and from their embarrassed looks she knew they had been discussing the whole matter.

"Eric told me to tell you he was sorry," she murmured, moving slowly towards them. She glanced anxiously at Melvyn. "I hope he didn't hurt you."

Melvyn laughed heartily as though he found her sympathy amusing. "The only thing that fellow hurt was his own nose."

Jane looked from one to the other, her eyes curtained by half-closed eyelids. "I suppose Melvyn should apologize for hitting him. But if he does I'll never speak to him again. The quarrel was Eric's fault."

Her tone of voice annoyed Elaine and she looked at her roommate with flashing eyes, tempted to tell her the truth, on the verge of explaining that had Melvyn acted more gentlemanly that very morning there would be no feeling of animosity between them. But even as she brought the words to her lips she caught Melvyn's reckless grin and suddenly realized he would be only too happy if she did precipitate another quarrel. She closed her lips, grimly determined to let him know that the kiss meant absolutely nothing to her. And it didn't, either!

She sat down on the couch with a sigh, suddenly conscious of being utterly exhausted. Before she knew it she was telling them about her radio audition and smiled when Jane, after hearing the news, hesitantly asked if she might touch her shoulder.

"After all," Jane said, explaining the reason for this strange request, "it isn't every day that I have an opportunity to be so close to a celebrity."

"You'll be seeing more of Elaine than you seem to realize," Melvyn drawled. "She'll be your sister-in-law some day."

His light remark had the effect of completely destroying the pleasant friendliness which had pervaded the room and Elaine moved irritably away from his arm as he attempted to place it around her shoulder. She turned her head to face Jane, determined that they would have it out once and for all.

"The reason Eric began to fight is that this morning Mrs. Reardon's secretary came into the kitchen and caught Melvyn kissing me," she explained in a troubled voice. "Melvyn says he loves me and he seems to believe that I am in love with him but don't know it."

"Maybe you are at that," Jane said lightly, eyes resting with interest upon Elaine's crimson face. "Look, you can't even talk about my brother without blushing!"

"I'm not blushing, I'm just angry!" Elaine flared, rising from the couch. "Oh, I know what you think. You think I don't know my own mind; that I don't know what Eric is like. But you're wrong, both of you. Eric is weak, in a way, and he's a coward too, and probably a good many other things besides. But I love him and I'm going to marry him, and Melvyn, if you don't stop bothering me I'll have to leave this apartment!"

"It wouldn't do any good," he remarked coldly, rising to his feet. He moved over to her and grasped her arms and his voice when he spoke was flat and uncompromising.

"Elaine, I punched Reardon in the nose not because he took a swing at me or because he tried to hurt me. I walloped him because of the despicable way he treated you. I happen to resent the way he treated my future wife. And don't make any mistake about that, either. You are going to marry me, and you'll be the one who does the asking. I get what I want, Elaine Warburton, and if you think I'm going to let a cowardly nincompoop like Reardon walk off with you, you're crazy!"

Elaine qualied before the fire in his eyes and she gasped as his fingers bit deep into the flesh of her shoulders. He was strong, terribly strong, and the blazing fury in his eyes frightened her. But he wouldn't ever know that! She raised her head proudly, defiantly.

"You can hurt me all you want to," Elaine told Melvyn scornfully, not wincing now as his fingers kept biting into her shoulders. "You can rant and rave and raise all the fuss you want to, but I'm still not in love with you and I'll never marry you. Now stop acting like an idiot and take your hands away from me!"

Strangely, it wasn't anger that churned through her, nor even annoyance, nothing but pity, for in Melvyn's eyes there had been more than anger, there had been love, the same look of love she had so often seen flaming in Eric's eyes. She laid her hand gently on his shoulder and when she spoke again her voice was soft, almost tender.

"It really isn't any use, Melvyn. I just love Eric no matter what his faults may be. Perhaps that might sound silly to you, but—well, I know my own mind best."

All through the tense scene, enacted before her eyes, Jane had sat still and quiet, wondering as to reason for it anyway, and feeling somewhat embarrassed at being forced to witness a quarrel which should have been conducted privately. She coughed lightly to let them know she was still there.

"But Elaine, I never suspected your voice was good enough for radio work," she remarked, adroitly changing the subject.

Realizing that Jane was trying to break up the quarrel, Elaine walked back to the couch again and sat down. "Well, now we're even. When I came here I didn't know you could paint. Incidentally, how did you make out with those greeting-card companies?"

Jane patted her own back proudly. "I landed a good order. As a matter of fact I'm still going to be earning more than you each week."

"Braggart," Melvyn accused, obviously trying to take his sister down a peg in her own esteem, but too proud of her to keep it secret. "I don't know why it is that women get such lucky breaks anyway. Elaine a highly paid singer, you a highly paid artist while I'm just a poor struggling doctor!"

Elaine was pleased to see that the tautness of his face had disappeared beneath the amiable smile wrinkles and she motioned for him to take a seat beside her, glad that the quarrel had not had the effect of straining her friendship with Jane, but glad, too, that she had definitely put Melvyn in his place, once and for all.

The loud thump which emanated from the kitchen drew her anxiously out of her chair and she walked swiftly to the door. Perhaps it was the pimply-faced crook with the gun who had been there the previous evening. She opened the door half expecting that it would be, feeling comforted by the knowledge that Melvyn was in the room.

She was astonished to see Jack O'Malley sitting disconsolately at the kitchen table, head down against his broad chest. Curious, she walked into the room.

"Jack, don't tell me there is something wrong in your life, too."

"Kipling was right," he muttered, glancing at her with a scowl. "Shure an' the great poet was right. 'A woman is only a woman, but a good cigar is a smoke'!"

"That has all the earmarks of a nasty crack," Jane declared, coming into the room. She took one look at Jack's troubled face and walked anxiously over to him. "Come on, you big lummox, what's wrong?"

Jack wagged his head sadly from side to side and shifted his huge bulk into a more comfortable position. "Me colleen answered me letter. She wrote an' said shure an' she was sorry, but that she loved the auld country best and' that she loved a whippersnapper of a lad an' that she was not comin' to America to marry me."

"Oh, Jack, I'm so sorry," Jane said quickly. But it was evident to all in the room that she was not sorry, but elated. She patted his head comfortingly. "I'll make you a nice cup of tea. That ought to make you feel better."

"Tea, when me heart is breakin'? Jack sniffed.

"It helps, sometimes," Eric said shyly from the door. He walked slowly into the room, his face flushed, and paused before Melvyn, hand outstretched. "I'm sorry I flew off the handle, Stuart. Elaine told me how silly I was."

Elaine felt herself grow tense as Melvyn leisurely inspected Eric's face. Somehow she knew that the quarrel was not over; deep down inside of her she knew that Melvyn was going to heap more coals on the fire.

It came with a swiftness that left her breathless.

"That kiss did mean something to me, Reardon," Melvyn announced flatly. "You see, I'm going to marry Elaine."

Eric drew back perplexed, looking from one to the other, and in the stillness of the room Elaine could hear the pulsating throb of her heart. She stared fascinated at the two men, waiting nervously for one of them to speak.

For an interminable moment Eric stood rigid by the door, two spots of color staining his cheeks, and then, with a hoarse laugh he moved away from Melvyn.

"I'd kill Elaine before I ever permitted her to marry you, Stuart!"

Wilder and wilder came the storm, Eerie lightning slashed jaggedly through the churning sky, painting the house, the room a ghastly yellow-green sheen then fled, to leave a blackness more menacing than the raging storm. Thunder roared over the house, wind beat at its walls, solid sheets of rain smashed at the windowpanes, all the world outside was dark and fearsome and insanely wild, and Clara Blanchard, as she sat in an armchair in the living-room of her father's Fifth avenue mansion, was terribly, terribly afraid.

"But Clara," Betty exclaimed for the hundredth time, "it's just a thunderstorm. There's nothing to be frightened about. The elements have just decided to go out and make a little whoopie." She stood up and grinned. "Me, I don't blame them. It's good to have fun once in a while."

Clara sighed and made a desperate effort to control her shivering nerves. "Maybe you're right. All I know is that I've been afraid of thunderstorms for as long as I can remember. Betty, do you think Elaine and Eric will get here all right? It's terrible out and . . ."

"Elaine isn't a baby," Betty interrupted teasingly. "She'll get here with Eric even if she has to carry him all the way. And incidentally, Clara Blanchard, how come this sudden urge to see Eric? I thought you weren't going to have a thing to do with him?"

Clara yawned and turned her eyes up to the ceiling. But the bright gleam in those gray eyes belied her air of indifference. "I was wrong about Eric, Betty. He's really a fine chap. He'll make Elaine a good husband."

"Hmm. Very interesting, if true. But how come you know so much about him? You've never met him." Betty glanced sharply at her chum. "Or have you? Clara Blanchard, if you went to see Eric without taking me, I'll break your lily-white neck!"

Clara sniffed disdainfully. "I'd squash you like a cockroach, my dear. But I did meet Eric. I saw him the other day in dad's office. And I like him, Betty. Outside of being a little bit green about some things, he's swell!"

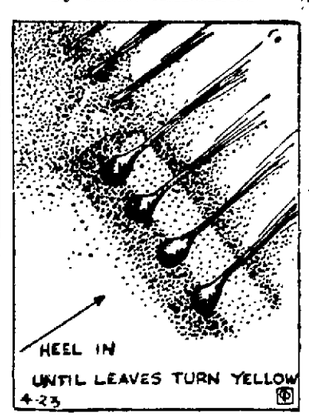

"He's a heel!" Betty stormed, stalking up and down the room. "He's caused Elaine nothing but heartache and trouble. She'd be better off if he went back to California and his beloved mamma. If he were any good he'd get himself a real job. He'd marry Elaine now instead of waiting to make good. That making good is only an excuse. He's trying desperately to get his mother to agree to the match. In his heart he's afraid of being without money."

"So am I," Clara told her softly. She settled herself more comfortably in her chair and seemed to lose her fear of the storm in her effort to defend Eric. "Deep down inside, so are you afraid of being without money. When a person becomes accustomed to living as we do, with money at our fingertips, with servants at our beck and call, it isn't easy to play the hero and sacrifice all for the girl you love."

PREPARING TULIP BULBS FOR STORAGE

Often the garden's schedule is such that thes pace occupied by tulips is needed for the next planting, and the tulips must be taken up as soon as their blooms have lost their beauty. When this is the case the tulip bulbs should be heeled in somewhere else and left until the foliage has yellowed.

When lifting tulips for heeling in again in preparation for summer storage, take them up with as many roots as possible. Heel them in a trench in a shady, well-watered place, as shown in the Garden-Graph.

Leave the bulbs undisturbed until the foliage has yellowed, which indicated that the bulbs have ripened. Then store the bulbs in a cool, dry, dark place. Perforated paper bags or flats are excellent for storage purposes, if they receive adequate ventilation.

HIGH KICKER

Male Member of Dance Class Crashes Glass Door.

PHILADELPHIA — John Homelsky, 21, only male student in a "modern dance" class, was urged by his teacher to "kick a little higher."

He did—and went right through the glass of a French door.

Two girls fainted. Homelsky went to a hospital.

RUSE SCARES GUNMAN AWAY

Would-Be Robber Flees When Salesgirl Shouts 'Here Comes the Boss.'

her, 'Hands up, you, or I'll shoot'."

Not during her 10 years at the store had Miss DeWitt ever faced a situation like that, she said. Apparently quite calm after her experience, she told how she considered "letting the bandit have one" with the fist she held doubled up under the dress she had been displaying.

"He turned to me and said 'I'll give you two minutes to get back there and open that register,' and he repeated that he'd shoot and that he meant it."

She told the youth, whom she described to officers as about 19 years old, that there was little money in the cash register. Miss DeWitt had banked the store's funds at the Richland Trust company shortly before noon.

It was her shout of "look out, here comes the boss," that finally frightened the gunman.

"I don't know why I did it or what made me think of it, but it was out before I knew it," she said as she continued with her story.

"He must have been an amateur because he turned around and when he saw no one was there he shrugged his shoulders and remarked, "aw well," rather disgusted and ran from the store.

Miss DeWitt told officers the youth ran across the street and then went north towards Fourth street.

Police today were continuing efforts to locate the youth. Miss DeWitt said she was positive she could identify the gunman from any suspects police may apprehend.

"I'd recognize him in a minute. I'll never forget that face as long as I live even if I was frightened," she remarked.

Police here were checking with Shelby officers on the belief that the gunman may have been the same one who robbed the state liquor store at Shelby of $110 last night

TWO FINED $25

Plumbing Contractor, Plumber Violated City Ordinance.

A Mansfield plumbing contractor and a plumber were each fined $25 and costs in municipal court this morning after pleading guilty to charges of violating the city plumbing code. Affidavits against another contractor was withdrawn.

E. L. Malone, 777 Highland avenue, whose address was erroneously given in the Sunday News-Journal as 102 North Main street, was the contractor fined, and Douglas Kinton, 61 South Mulberry street, was the plumber. Malone is an independent contractor and is not identified with the Malone Plumbing and Heating company, 102 North Main street.

Both Malone and Kinton faced affidavits filed by Fred Haag, city plumbing inspector. Malone was charged with permitting Kinton to use his license to install plumbing fixtures in a house at 81 Flint street, and Kinton was accused of doing the work for Mrs. C. D. Valentine without a permit.

An affidavit against Charles Hoffman, 106 North Walnut street, was withdrawn by order City Solicitor Marion D. Ward when the contractor proved that he had taken out a permit for the work at the county Fairground several days after the work started. The law does not specify the permit must be taken out first, Ward said.

TIRE EMPLOYES HAVE DINNER AT TAVERN

Quizz Program Provides Entertainment for Plant Club; Misses Tinkey, Star In Charge of Arrangements.

THERE were 46 members of the M. T. and R. Girls club of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company in attendance at a dinner party yesterday evening at Schwarz' Tavern on the Lexington avenue road. The U-shaped dinner table was decorated with miniature flowers, made of candy, and candles in pastel shades. Little candy dogs with tires around their necks marked the places of the guests.

Miss Mary Gruber was in charge of a short business session, when Miss Grace Ladd, secretary, and Mrs. Charles Bahl, treasurer, gave reports.

A quiz-bee was conducted then, with prizes going to Miss Helen Smith and Mrs. Marjorie Mowry. Bunco was the diversion during the remainder of the evening, and Miss Evelyn Radovich won the high score prize.

Miss Martha Tinkey, Mrs. Winifred Botzer and Miss Ann Fogle served on the arrangement committee, while the Misses Eleanor Star, Louise Enderle and Ruth Free planned the entertainment. The next social meeting will be an event of May 27, with the place to be announced later.

FAREWELL PARTY.

A farewell party honoring Miss Bertha McClure was held Sunday at the Mifflin Inn. The honoree, who was presented with a wardrobe trunk by her friends, will leave May 1 for New York. The evening was spent socially by the 11 guests.

Couple Quietly Wed Saturday At Church Parsonage

Announcement was made today of the marriage Saturday at 10:30 a. m. of Miss Ruth Orewiler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Orewiler, R. D. 3, and Harold J. Strohminger, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Strohminger, R. D. 1. The simple ceremony was read at the parsonage by Rev. E. H. Thompson, pastor of the Ontario Community church.

The former Miss Orewiler wore a navy sheer redingote style dress with navy and white accessories. Her corsage was of Talisman roses. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith. Mrs. Smith wore a pink dress with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink sweet peas.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Strohminger are graduates of the Springfield Township high school. The bride has been employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, while Mr. Strohminger is an employe of the Cement Products company. Upon their return from a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Strohminger will be at home with Mr. and Mrs. Orewiler.

Dr. Lewis Speaks Before Primary Teachers Group

DR. E. E. LEWIS, professor of education at Ohio State university, was the guest speaker yesterday evening at the Mansfield Primary Teachers' annual dinner at John Simpson Junior high school. The principal theme of Dr. Lewis' speech dealt with the training of youth in reflective thinking.

There were 92 persons in attendance at the dinner. The speaker's table was decorated with tall tapers in pastel shades, spring flowers and novelty place cards, tied with bows of pastel-tinted ribbon. Candles, floral sprays and place cards also decorated the ten other dinner tables.

W. L. Miller, superintendent of the school, presided at the meeting and made the introductions. Boyd Robinson, superintendent of the Richland county schools, extended greetings, and and A. LeMoine Derr led the group singing, accompanied at the piano by Miss Jane Miller.

The musical portion of the program was opened with the teachers singing under the direction of Mr. Derr. Miss Miller presented a group of piano selections, which included "Reverie" by Debussy, Liszt's "Canzonetta del Salvator Rosa" and "Etude" by Wollenhaupt. Mr. Derr sang the popular "God Bless America" by Irving Berlin, Stephen Foster's "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair," and "On the Road to Mandalay" by Oley Speaks. The program was concluded with community singing.

Serve Dinner To 75 Guild Members

Preceding the meeting of the seminar in creative living being held this week at the Park Avenue Baptist church, 75 members of the Junior and Senior guilds and of the Dorcas class of the Loudonville church met in the church for a covered-dish dinner. Mrs. Jessie Eubank, former teacher at Stephens college, who is now conducting the seminar here, was the guest speaker.

Mrs. Hayes M. Braker led the group in prayer, and Mrs. Lawrence Whisler, president of the senior guild, introduced Mrs. Eubank, who chose as her seminar topic "The World Adrift—For What?"

Arrangements for the dinner are in charge of Mrs. Holly Connor, Mrs. Donald Curl, Mrs. Willard Conn, Mrs. Rolland McAllister, Mrs. Herbert Horsemen and Miss Leafa Harron.

School Officials at Primary Teachers' Party

Several local school officials were among the guests at the banquet and meeting held by the Primary Teachers at the John Simpson Junior high school last night. Shown from left to right, above, are Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Robinson, Dr. E. E. Lewis, guest speaker, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Miller. Robinson and Miller are county and Mansfield superintendents of schools, respectively.

Victorian Members Hold Final Meeting Of Year

The final meeting of the year was held yesterday afternoon at the Women's Club when Mrs. Charles Brown and Mrs. C. H. Henkel entertained with a 1 o'clock luncheon for 26 members of the Victorian club. Yellow and lavender decorations were used on the luncheon tables.

Annual reports were given by the officers and standing committees, and arrangements for next year's program were discussed. Mrs. Victor Smith had the program of the afternoon entitled "Clothing and Accessories."

HOSPITAL TESTS REVEAL GREAT DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

At last—here's an ideal, "daily" treatment for constipation with its headaches, mental dullness, fatigue and sallow skin.

Tests in a world-famous hospital have proved a "little daily dose" of Kruschen (world-famous formula, now at last obtainable in pleasant tasting "bubbling" form) actually produces nature's own gentle, pleasant, "daily" bowel movements by keeping the waste matter in the colon moist, soft and easy to expel.

Scientists report: "Kruschen can be taken for years without having to increase the dose." Also acts as a mild Antacid and Kidney Stimulant. Gives you MORE for your money, too! A jar that costs only a trifle lasts for WEEKS. Over 245,000,000 jars have been sold thruout the world. Kruschen MUST be good—it MUST do the work! Made in U. S. A.

Now Comes in Pleasant Tasting "Bubbling" Form!

LEGION AUXILIARY ENTERTAINS GUESTS

Members of Other Veterans' Groups Present for Program, Bridge; Routine Session Held at Home.

A GUEST PARTY was held last night by members of the American Legion auxiliary at the Legion home with members from various veterans auxiliaries as the guests of honor. Following the routine business meeting, a program of musical numbers and dances was presented. Mrs. A. W. Knapp was program chairman, and Mrs. Herman Wolf and her committee served refreshments after which the group played bridge.

Mrs. Robert Jones was in charge of the routine session. Mrs. Herman Hautzenroeder, rehabilitation chairman, reported the presentation of groceries, coal, spectacles and bus fare to veterans and their families, while Mrs. Karl Kahl, child welfare chairman, announced that groceries, shoes and milk had been distributed to two families.

The date of the next Bridge club meeting was set by Mrs. Rolla Huffman, chairman, for April 30, while Mrs. Hollis Moorhead reported that the Junior Activities group will entertain with a tea for their mothers at the home on May 11.

Members planning to attend the open house at the Soldiers and Sailors home at Sandusky were asked to take gifts of magazines or books to the home. The next regular meeting will be held May 13.

SPECIAL SESSION.

At a special business meeting of the Zeta Rho chapter of Delta Theta Tau held last night at the home of Miss Maxine Coffman, 162 Lind avenue, a report on the social service work of the sorority was made by Miss Kay Baker. Arrangements were made to hold the benefit bridge party the second week in May, with the exact date to be announced later. The next regular meeting will be held May 6 with Mrs. John Douglas, 15 Baldwin avenue.

Department Head Conducts Annual Tent Inspection

Colorful bowls of spring flowers, and dainty corsages of red and white sweet peas tied with blue ribbon marking the places formed the decorations for the 6:30 p. m. dinner served at the Evergreens last night preceding the annual inspection of Mary B. Mitchell Tent No. 40, Daughters of Union Veterans. Miss Kathryn Heck, department president from Gnadenhutten, was inspecting officer, and guest of honor. She gave the group a rating of excellent.

Later the group gathered at the Memorial building. Mrs. Henrietta Sherman, tent president, conducted full ritualistic work. All the chair officers were attired in simple white formal gowns, while the floor officers wore white military dress with infantry blue capes lined with red satin.

During the business meeting national general orders were read, and also national patriotic and national defense committee reports. The patriotic instructor, Doris Clark, read a paper in commemoration of the birthday of U. S. Grant. Plans were announced at this time for a rummage sale to be held May 3 and 4 at 13 East Sixth street. The next meeting will be May 13 at the Memorial building.

Give Shower To Alice Maxwell

Mrs. Alice Maxwell was feted with a handkerchief shower in honor of her birthday, when eight members of the Gardenia club and one guest, Mrs. Bessie DeYarmon, met yesterday evening at the home of Mrs. Jane Beelman, 16 Atherton avenue.

After a short business session, which was conducted by Mrs. Howard Schuck, the group played bunco. Mrs. Julia Grandstaff and Mrs. Nettie Young won the high score awards, while Mrs. DeYarmon was the recipient of a guest prize. The hostess served a two-course luncheon at small tables following the games.

Mrs. Catherine Yost has invited the club members to her home, 112½ South Main street, for the next meeting, which will be held on May 6.

Husband's Affection Wanes

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

In spite of all our talk about a change in sex standards and single code for men and women down deep in the heart of the average man there exists the old law of the primal tribe. If a girl proves her love to him before she is bound to him, he is apt to reason that she will be likely to prove her love t o someone else.

The following letter in the morning's mail speaks for itself:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I'm still in my teens and I have a lovely baby a year old. My husband is several years older. During our engagement he persuaded me that an engagement is as binding as marriage. And I gave in to his demands with the result that my baby was born too soon after our marriage to silence gossip, and my mother said I had disgraced the family. However, mother has forgiven me and urges me to get a divorce because I have been so badly treated.

"After the baby was three months old my husband decided to be single again, and started running around with all the girls and married women in town.

"Mother has been coming to see me and she has urged me to separate from my husband. She agrees to take the baby so I could go to work. But my husband says he will never give up the baby and I am afraid if we do become legally separated, he will try to bring some charges against me, saying that I am an unfit mother. He has beaten and abused me on many occasions, and I suppose I might be able to get a divorce on the grounds of cruelty. But will he make up something about me so that I can't have my baby?

HEARTBROKEN."

Until this girl obtains a divorce or legal separation—and she had better look into the conditions implied by both these decrees—she must be entirely circumspect. She must not be seen with any other man, or even go out with a crowd of young people when men are present.

All of this may seem to be overcautious, but in parts of her letter, which is too long to print, it is likely that this badly treated young wife may have felt entitled at times to go out with some friends—boys and girls—and if her husband finds it out, it will not be hard to fabricate charges.

My suggestion to her is that if her mother cannot afford to employ a lawyer, that she take up her case with the Legal Aid Society. If she writes to me again, I hope she will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope, as it has not been easy to discuss her letter fully in this column.

Eight presidents of the United States were born British subjects —Washington, John Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Jackson and W. H. Harrison.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

DICKY did not relax his grip upon our elbows until we reached my father's armchair. The door was ajar, and Miss Whitlock, who evidently had been watching for our arrival, swung it open for our entrance. Dicky swept us through, and ranged us in front of "the Chief" in the manner of a truant officer bringing two runaway boys before the school principal.

"Here they are, Dad," he said cheerily, "and from their general appearance, I judge they've eaten the canary, even to the tail feathers."

"You have results, I take it," he said.

Lillian did not wait for me to answer.

"Madge is too modest," she said. "I'll have to chant this saga. She came to Miss Annie Carman, she saw her, she conquered her. We not only have found out that the region between the farm house and the bay has a number of secret tunnels, but Miss Carman gave us full maps and descriptions of the secret entrance to the attic here, and of tunnels outside. And it's all due to Madge's shrewdness. We never would have gotten a word out of her otherwise."

"I have always known that I could trust my daughter's judgment in an emergency," he said. "Will you please show me the maps and other papers now?

But Miss Whitlock stepped inexorably forward, her attitude that of the professional nurse whose indulgence has been tried beyond limit.

"You should have had your dinner an hour ago," she said severely. "You promised me that I could bring it up as soon as your daughter returned."

"But these maps are of vital importance," he protested.

She smiled at him a bit mischievously.

"Will you give me your word of honor that it is vital you look at them before you have your dinner?" she asked.

I was surprised to hear him answer "No-o."

"Then I'll bring it up at once," she said briskly, "so that there will be the least possible delay for you. And, if I may make a suggestion"—she turned to us with an air that made her suggestion subtly a command—"I think you ought to go down and have your dinners now, and then you'll be ready when Mr. Graham is."

"That's a good idea," Dicky commented. "Come along, girls! I'm half starved."

"Didn't you have your dinner?" I inquired with concern.

"Without you, sweetie pie?" he countered flamboyantly. "I couldn't have eaten a mouthful! Everybody else did, however, and I soothed Katie's ruffled feelings by telling her you were off on some 'de-tec-a-tuff stoof' for your father. She fairly gurgled her approval, and I imagine she's probably fried an extra chicken for you and Lil."

He had deftly ushered us into the hall as he spoke, and I realized that we were still holding the bundles of papers.

"I hope she's fried five," Lillian said extravagantly. "I could eat 'em all."

"What?" I began, indicating the papers in our hands and nodding toward the door, which Miss Whitlock had closed after us.

"Lock 'em up in the desk in my room," Lillian said promptly. "Excuse us a minute, Dicky. We'll wash up and be back with you in a minute."

"If it's more than 10," Dicky threatened, "I'll come after you with handcuffs."

"Rush yourself downstairs and tell Katie to put dinner on the table," I told him. "We'll be there by the time she serves the first course."

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, April 24.

THIS should be a day of brilliant performance, with the spirit of initiative and enterprise under high mental stimuli for much progressive work. This may operate in the field of promotion, advertising, publishing, trading or in highly-creative literary output. Co-operation with groups of a social, humanitarian, educational or political nature, where propaganda or the moulding of public opinion is involved, may enjoy surprising success. But be careful with funds and ready for trivial disappointments or setbacks, perhaps due to health.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of splendid accomplishment, especially in fields where excellent creative ability, or shrewd talents in writings, publicity, promotion or commercial campaigns demanding sagacity and originality, are exercised. Work with groups of a humanitarian, social, educational or political character should thrive, if finances are wisely handled and there are no impediments due to health depressions.

A child born on this day may be versatile, brilliant and a profound thinker, although possibly high-strung and volatile. It should have a successful career, perhaps in literature.

Overdressing Sartorial Sin

By MME. QUI VIVE

If every woman in the civilized world were blessed with good taste there would be no frumps or freakish looking femmes. You wouldn't see faces with batik makeup or those dead-pan mugs that are supposed to be strictly au fait.

Many an ambitious lady, eager to attain chic and style, succeeds only in making herself conspicuous. All eyes are upon her, but they do not bespeak admiration. They appear to be asking a question: "Do you suppose she's all there, or is she slightly cuckoo?" To get oneself up like a circus parade and to flaunt excessive makeup is something that the well-bred woman doesn't do.

A woman is more important than the clothes she wears. They should not outshine her. The way to be vivid is to cultivate a clear complexion, sparkling eyes, glisteny hair and natural animation. You can't get results by means of face paint, skin calcimine and gaudy dry goods.

Take the redhead, for instance. Her clear delicate skin and titian hair supply all the color she needs. Her best dress bet is black, and this goes for millinery as well. Makeup detracts from her natural coloring, clashes with her flaming locks. Her needs are simple lines, plain fabrics, with stunning jewelry, preferable of gold instead of colored gems.

Like the redhead, the Irish type —blue eyes, dark hair and fair skin—should play up her natural coloring by selecting clothes that give her a subdued background. She should never wear brown, beige or grey. Navy blue, black and certain shades of blue-green are flattering.

The brunet is the girl who can get away with flashing draperies. If she wears black, she must add bright-colored accessories. She has a wide range of becoming colors. Brown shades, when warm, bring out the loveliness of her brown eyes. Blues, from the darkest to the dull French blues, make friends with her dark tresses and her ivory skin. A cerise hat of the right type for her features sets her apart, makes her a treat to the eyes.

Now that clothes are less simple, carry the fluff-stuff and all manner of decorations, one must be careful not to go beyond the limit of good taste. As for bows, dodads, hair ornaments, costume jewelry and bouquets, a safe slogan is: "When in doubt, don't wear it." The feminine frame can carry just so much in the way of ornamentation and no more, if it is to appear at tip-toppingest best.

Many details must be considered —the relationship of lipstick to the color of the frock, fabrics that are suitable to weight and measurements, the arrangement of the hair and its effect upon the features. A big order, but what the heck? It's fun working out problems that have to do with appearance.

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE IDEAL DIVISION

WHEN YOU have four trumps in one hand opposite four in the other, you have the most pliable distribution of eight cards of the suit. It empowers you to play the hand in a wider variety of ways than with any other division of the suit. For cross-ruffing it is by far the best arrangement, and on hands not adapted to that form of play it has another special value. Either your own holding or the dummy may be treated as the master, using the trumps of the opposite hand for helping set up a side suit by ruffling out the opponents' winners.

	♠ 5 2 ♥ A 5 4 3 ♦ K 10 7 4 3 2 ♣ 2
♠ K 9 6 3 ♥ J 10 9 2 ♦ J 5 ♣ 9 7 6	N. W. E S.	♠ Q 10 7 4 ♥ 8 ♦ Q 9 8 ♣ K 10 8 4 3
	♠ A J 8 ♥ K Q 7 6 ♦ A 6 ♣ A Q J 5

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	6 ♥

North's sudden leap to slam, as soon as he heard the heart bid, was justified in this case by the fact that the pair was making No Trump opening bids only on extremely powerful hands. Radically different bidding would be done by most good players.

Miss Grace Brander, New York duplicate enthusiast gave a neat example of what is called "reverse play," using the dummy as the master, after West led the club 9. Deciding to set up the diamonds, she won East's club K with the A, led her two trump honors, to disclose the bad trump distribution, cashed the spade A, discarded a spade on the club Q, took the A and K of diamonds, then led a third diamond and ruffed. If West had over-ruffed, he could have made no more tricks, so he discarded a spade. The heart A was cashed, then diamonds led for West to ruff. The heart 5 ruffed the return and diamonds finished the hand.

Another player, trying to clear the South hand, using North's trumps for ruffing, failed in the effort to make 6-Hearts. Go through the play yourself on this basis, and you will note the difficulties entailed.

Diary Of Help With Problems

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Some months ago I quoted in this column from the diary of a mother who happened also to be a newspaper woman. Her diary was an honest effort to record her problems, failures and successes as a parent. As I did then, so would I now urge other mothers to keep diaries and I should like to hear from more who do.

Many teachers, from college presidents to teachers in the nursery school, read this column and write me about the children and youths with whom they deal. Some of these correspondents make very keen observations and present helpful ideas.

Several years ago, one of my readers who teaches in a downtown area of Minneapolis wrote to remind me that many school children come from homes and have parents of a different sort from the ones about which I generally write. Her account of some of the home problems of several of her pupils was so vivid and evinced an insight so penetrating that I wrote her that she should keep a diary recording her observations, experiences and feelings in relation to these children.

She Did So.

She took me seriously. A year later she wrote: "Last fall you suggested that I keep a kind of diary and in it write all sorts of observations and experiences. You also suggested that I send it to you after a year. I did keep a record all last year and I shall be happy to send it if you wish.

"I am so glad I followed your suggestion. It has helped me more than I can tell you. It has helped me clarify the problems I was up against. . . .

"It seems to me that I took a long stride forward last year in understanding adolescents, their problems and myself. I believe I never enjoyed a year quite so much nor did I ever get so much out of my efforts. I really believe I forget myself to a greater degree than I ever had in attempting to teach my youngsters the better way of living and doing. And in back of it all was the notebook into which I knew would go all my experiences."

She sent me a copy of this diary and I have read and re-read all of it with great interest and profit. I wish you might read it, too. You would marvel with me at this teacher's understanding of the children she writes about.

Different This Year.

Recently she wrote again: "My diary of this year is much different from that of last. I feel like a snake that has shed his old dry skin and is ready for a newer, better one. Those notes of last year became stepping-stones, I hope, to a wider vision for me. Never again will I have to work out these problems of the children in such a hard way because your way helped me to get a more intelligent understanding of things and I am able to face my days and do my work in a better way. . . ."

Tomorrow's Problem.

4½% MONEY FOR HOME BUILDING

Fine — — — to give it to the landlord, but what have YOU to show for it? Along comes a boost in rent and you have to MOVE. END ALL THIS! You can BUILD and OWN YOUR HOME — — — and PAY FOR IT LIKE RENT.

OPPORTUNITY comes knock, knock, knocking at your door. Opportunity to have your own home . . . with NO large nestegg needed and NO more money to put up each month than you are now paying in rent.
Where can you meet up with such a proposition . . . (you put up a dime and 90c of every building dollar will be furnished at 4½%)?
Through our Complete Home Service Plan we can fix you up from the financing through to complete construction. All you need is a $400 lot to get up to $3600. You will know exactly how much it will cost, no extras, will know exactly how much to pay each month. That amount even includes Taxes, Insurance, Principal and Interest.
Bear in mind that your home will be built under strict and impartial FHA supervision and inspection. Don't wait any longer for "your ship to come in". It's here now. Call at our office, or telephone Mr. Pfister for complete details.

STOCKS SHIFT OVER HIGHER TRAIL TODAY

U. S. Steel and Shipbuilding Among List Tilting Forward; Commodities Mixed.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — (AP) — Stock market leaders shifted over a moderately higher trail in today's session.

Inclined to tilt forward fractions to around a point were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Du Pont, Union Carbide, U. S. Rubber, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Allied Mills, N. Y. Shipbuilding and Electric Boat.

Bonds improved in spots, but Commodities were a trifle mixed, as were the principal foreign securities markets.

A hopeful market straw was seen in the federal reserve summary for the week ended April 17, disclosing an increase of $37,000,000 in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of member banks.

Helpful was the comment of President Keller of the Chrysler Corp., that demand for new automobiles has been better every week since the first of the year.

U. S. TREASURY REPORT

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The treasury balance on April 20 was: $2,261,175,988.93.

6 CASES LISTED

Court to Hear Divorce Cases Wednesday.

Six Richland county couples are scheduled to take their domestic troubles before Judge C. H. Huston Wednesday in common pleas court. The divorce cases will be heard by Judge Huston while he is waiting for the grand jury which opens its session today, to report.

On the calendar for Wednesday are cases involving these plaintiffs and defendants:

Stella M. Baer vs. Everett E. Baer; Virginia Baughman vs. Frederick M. Baughman; Rebecca Groscost vs. Millard Groscost; Allen Jackson vs. Ione Jackson; Burton Stinehour vs. Dolores Stinehour; Minnie Head vs. John Head.

20 Acts Included In 'Circus' To Be Staged at Y.M.C.A.

Twenty acts make up the program for the first annual Y. M. C. A. circus to be staged at 8 p. m. Thursday and Friday in the "Y" gymnasium.

The two-hour program includes acrobats, clowns, dancers, tumblers, and animals, and is to be staged by leading amateur and professional performers of Mansfield and Y. M. C. A. groups.

Among the "Y" groups taking part are the Friendly Indians, Pioneer and Senior high gym classes, Phalanx fraternity and Hi-Y clubs. Dancing and acrobatic acts will be provided by students of the Margaret Speas and Marty Hogan dance studios, and Smart's accordion band and a band comprised of junior high school students will furnish music for the show. A trained dog act will be furnished by William Duffner of Ontario.

Richard Huffman, of the Phalanx fraternity, sponsors of the circus, will act as ringmaster. Vernon Smeltzer, also of the fraternity, is general chairman, and the program is under the direction of Donald Cram, "Y" physical director.

THEATERS

Miss Davis In 'The Old Maid.'

Bette Davis is also to be seen at the Majestic theater which is showing "The Old Maid." This play won the Pulitzer award and was written by Zoe Akins. George Brent and Miriam Hopkins have principal roles in this drama. In a lighter vein is "Honeymoon in Bali" with Fred MacMurray, Madeleine Carroll and Alan Jones in the leading parts.

Bette Davis as Queen.

Beginning Wednesday at the Ritz theater is Bette Davis in "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex" with Errol Flynn. Miss Davis is cast as Queen Elizabeth, torn between her love of England and its people and her love for the handsome and dashing young Earl of Essex. The co-feature is "Llano Kid" with Tito Guizar and Gale Sondergaard in the leads. The story is based on a famous O. Henry short story "A Double-Dyed Deceiver" and the background is in Mexico.

'Swiss Family Robinson.'

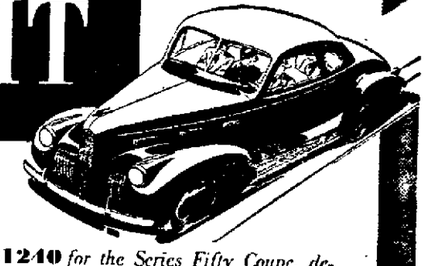

The exploits and adventures of a family of six castaways marooned on a tropic island, forms the basis of "Swiss Family Robinson," which begins Wednesday at the Madison theater. Thomas Mitchell, Edna Best and Freddie Bartholomew are the cast. The second feature is one of the "Dr. Christian" series; this time as "The Courageous Dr. Christian." Jean Hersholt, beloved in his famed role, now conducts a one-man crusade against the twin evils of disease and bad housing.

'Dr. Kildare's Strange Case.'

It has remained for motion pictures to help bring about a better doctor-patient understanding in America. This is the view of Lew Ayres, who, in the title role of "Dr. Kildare" series, has, as a young doctor learning from his older preceptor, Lional Barrymore, placed before audiences many little known facts regarding physicians, their work and their sacrifices in the interest of the public. In this latest of the series "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case," which opens at the Ohio Wednesday, Laraine Day plays the feminine lead.

"My gas refrigerator is really wonderful. It supplies dependable food protection, freezes loads of ice cubes and desserts. It never makes a sound and costs less than 2 cents a day to operate." —Mrs. P. A. S.

"Sometime ago, we installed 16 gas refrigerators in our apartment building. We have had no maintainance expense on them whatsoever. The tenants are extremely pleased with their low operating costs and complete silence." —Mr. H. S. G.

"We recently replaced another automatic refrigerator with a gas refrigerator. What a tremendous improvement. No noise, no upkeep. Cost of operation is about one-fourth as much. It more than pays for itself." —Mrs. O. H. S.

"Five year's experience has taught me that you can't beat the gas refrigerator that freezes without moving parts. There's nothing to wear. No upkeep, lowest cost operation that never increases with age." —Mr. I. B. S.

We, the People, Speak For GAS REFRIGERATION

These people (names on request) and many, many more will gladly speak for the merits of gas refrigeration. They'll tell you how the gas refrigerator operates silently on a tiny gas flame. They'll explain how it freezes without moving parts to wear. They'll show you how low is its cost of operation. Once you learn all the facts about gas refrigeration you'll never be satisfied with any other refrigerator. See the new 1940 Servel Electrolux models now.

Threat of Rain Brings New Ohio River Flood Fears

ALL BUSINESS HALTS IN LOW AREA AT CINCY

Mop and Bucket Squads Begin Cleaning Up Mud Damage in Marietta District.

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—The threat of showers today and Wednesday brought new fear to the Ohio river valley, still in the grip of floods that fell just short of disaster proportions.

Any sustained rainfall this week might send the Ohio and smaller streams upward to higher flood levels and cause heavy property damage and suspension of trade.

W. B. Schlomer, acting U. S. meteorologist at Cincinnati, said a low pressure area, carrying rain, was reported moving in from the southwest.

Business was halted in the lower Cincinnati produce district today as the Ohio river crept toward a predicted crest of 60 feet—eight feet above flood stage. The river had reached 58.22 feet this morning.

Mrs. Amelia McClure, chairman of the executive committee of the R. 1 Cross in Cincinnati, said 500 families were in the flood's path and would have to move before the river reaches its crest Wednesday.

Coney Island, amusement resort near Cincinnati, was under water. Backwater poured into Crosley field, where the Cincinnati Reds play. Spectators at yesterday's game with the St. Louis Cardinals saw water creep to the feet of fans in the third row of box seats.

One hundred produce dealers were in the flood zone. Three railroads moved their cars from the produce yards.

Plans were made to remove 2400 persons from their river front homes at Newport, Ky., Cincinnati suburb.

"Mop and bucket" brigades, composed mostly of Marietta college students, began cleaning up at Marietta today. The Ohio river reached a stage eight and a half feet above flood level there yesterday.

Five-sixths of the Marietta business district was under water at the worst. Most of the water was expected to be off the streets by tonight. The damage was largely from mud and water. Operation of the Muskingum conservancy district dams prevented the Muskingum river from creating a greater flood hazard at Marietta. Four hundred Marietta homes were

Every business house in Pomeroy had from two to six feet of water on the first floor after the Ohio river reached its crest there at midnight. Schools were closed today.

Carl Bowers, 25, of Pickerington, escaped injury when an iron bridge over Wakatomika creek collapsed under the weight of his dairy truck. The bridge had been weakened by the flood.

$18,000 Expansion To Be Started By Vault Firm Here

An $18,000 expansion program will be started immediately by the Mansfield Metal Vault company, it was announced today by Elmer Hedeen, president and manager.

A one-story steel and brick fireproof building will be added to the north of the present plant, which will give the company an additional 13,680 square feet of factory floor space.

The present building on Longview avenue will be remodeled to accommodate a boiler room, heating plant, and a show room. Offices will be located in the west end of the present building, Hedeen said.

The Mansfield Metal Vault is one of the Mansfield industrial concerns that has grown up during the depression, having been organized in 1930.

Hedeen said today the present plant is totally inadequate.

EX-MANSFIELD RESIDENT DIES

Mrs. Charlotte Shrader Succumbs at Sister's Home in Newark.

Word has been received here of the death in Newark of Mrs. Charlotte Shrader, 46, former Mansfield resident. She died Monday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Helen Wintermite, 28 South 32nd street, Newark, following a brief illness.

Surviving are a son, Alford, and her mother, Mrs. Lottie Kuhn, a sister, Mrs. Wintermite, and two brothers, S. J. Kuhn of Mansfield, and Paul Kuhn of Newark. Her husband preceded her in death several years ago.

The body was removed to the McClamen funeral home for funeral services at 2 p. m. Wednesday.

Officials Disagree on 'Inevitable War'

Up and Down THE STREET

Everything is being done to impress Mansfielders with the fact that next week is annual Community Fund campaign week. A number of banners have been stretched across the down town streets, one on Park avenue west, one on West Third street, one on North Main and a fourth at the public square. Besides these, 40 reflector signs have been erected over the city at vantage points. These show up at night in the glare of headlights and bear the inscription: "A worthy investment—Mansfield Community Fund. Invest now." The drive opens Monday and runs through May 4.

Eighth grade pupils in Richland county schools want careers that require uniforms and promise thrills and romance when they grow up, a questionnaire conducted in the schools indicates. Most of the boys said they wanted to be aviators, big league ball players, or bus drivers, although several of them still prefer farming. Only one wants to be a G-man. A number of the girls would like to be air hostesses and nurses, but secretarial work is also popular. One said she planned to be a "woman doctor" while another will be content to be a farmer's wife. The questions were answered by about 450 pupils in connection with an ability test.

There is a bit of spring in the "refurnishing" of Mayor W. J. Locke's private office at City building. The upholstered chairs whose brown leather backs and seats were worn to the point of shabbiness, have been re-done, this time in a colorful green leather cushions for the seat and back. Against the red mahogany wood they add a gay touch to the office.

Thirty-five Friendly House kindergarten boys and girls between the ages of 4 and 5 had their first experience in farm life this morning when they were given an opportunity to churn butter during a class period. More than a pound of butter was made by the group in a churn loaned to Mrs. Russell Gimbel, teacher, for the demonstration. After class a lunch of crackers and milk was served.

Mayor Increases Personnel of Planning Commission to 7.

Mansfield's five-member city planning commission membership was increased to seven today when Mayor W. J. Locke put into effect a stipulation of the state law which directs that in cities where there is a park commission, the president automatically becomes a member of the city planning group and that there shall be seven members on the commission.

Jack R. Balliett, 11 Euclid avenue, member of a Mansfield real estate agency, was appointed to a six-year term on the board by Mayor Locke while Roy Vaughn, as president of the park commission, automatically became a member.

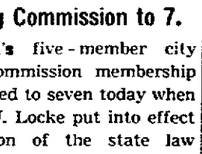

The mayor named Paul M. Eliot to fill the vacancy left by the death of Fred Altaffer. This term expires the last of 1943.

The commission is now made up of four citizen representatives, the park commission head, Mayor Locke and Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton. Citizen members are Arthur Courtney and W. C. Mansfield.

BARE GIGANTIC TIRE SWINDLE

Police Investigate Alleged $1,000,000 Racket In Buffalo, Cleveland.

(By United Press)

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Cleveland and Buffalo police authorities cooperated today in the investigation of an alleged $1,000,000 tire stealing racket.

Arrest of a local tire distributing company official and recovery of nearly 100 stolen tires were reported by Lieut. Charles Cavolo of the Cleveland police department, who came to Buffalo with two detectives to continue the inquiry.

Morris Levy, 39, Consolidated Sales company executive, was arrested yesterday on a charge of criminally receiving stolen property. Levy was accused of disposing of several thousand dollars worth of new tires, allegedly stripped from new automobiles in Cleveland and shipped here for distribution. After appearing before City Judge John Hillery, he was released in bail.

Lieut. Cavolo said the racket has been operated successfully for six years in Cleveland.

"A half dozen men have been picked up in Cleveland on suspicion of being members of the ring," he said. "Altogether we have recovered approximately 2,000 stolen tires. Almost every city in Ohio has been a distributing point."

BATTLE FOR PENNSYLVANIA DEM CONTROL REACHES CLIMAX

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Two years of fighting for control of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania reached a climax today as voters turned out to decide a noisy, free-swinging campaign battle on the Democratic side and a contrastingly serene Republican contest.

Democratic party rule hinged on U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey's fight for renomination against his chief opponent, Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man who was backed by a group of party leaders headed by Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence.

A third man in the race was fiddle-playing William N. McNair, former Pittsburgh mayor and outspoken anti-New Dealer.

Guffey, the state's 64-year-old junior senator, broke with Lawrence in the bitter 1938 primary, campaigning vigorously on a "100 per cent" New Deal record, charging Lawrence was responsible for the party rift.

Jones, 56, also bid for votes as a Roosevelt supporter, but left most of his public campaign work to his backers.

On the Republican side, party leaders were united behind the senatorial candidacy of Jay Cooke, Philadelphia banker. His opponents were Albert H. Ladner, jr., of Philadelphia, and John A. de Renzo, Altoona, publisher.

Lack of spirited issues in the campaign caused party officials to predict a light turn out among the state's 4,675,622 eligible voters—2,046,129 Democrats and 2,572,100 Republicans.

STILL MYSTERY

Cause of Wreck Which Killed 30 Unexplained by Probe.

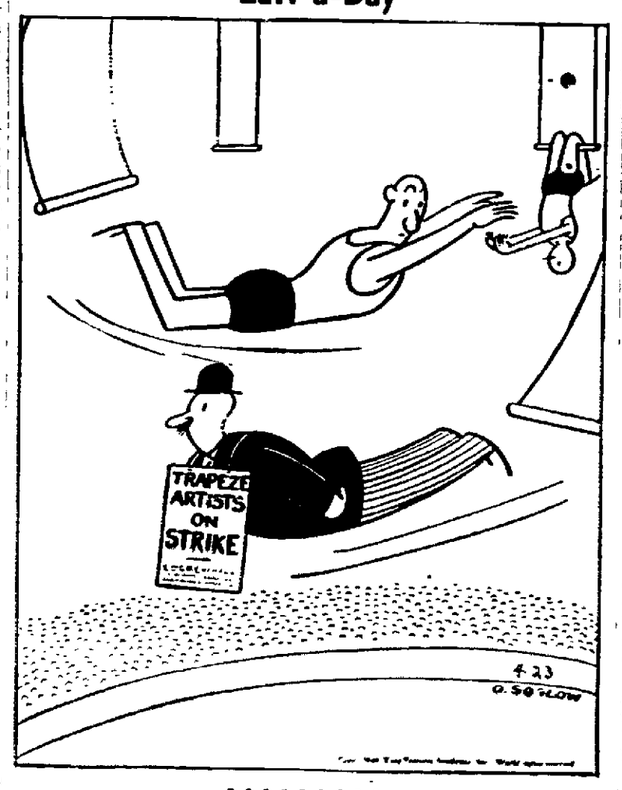

ALBANY, N. Y.—(AP)—Cause of the Little Falls, N. Y., wreck which killed 30 persons and injured 100 remains a mystery today after indefinite adjournment of an investigation producing testimony the New York Central's Lake Shore limited was in "perfect condition" before the accident.

The interstate commerce commission, New York state public service commission and the railroad recessed the inquiry while rail workers cleared up the remainder of the wreckage after removal of the last two of nine derailed cars.

Condition of some 40 victims still in Little Falls and Herkimer, N. Y., hospitals was reported unchanged.

Track and roadbed conditions at the scene of Friday night's pile-up were "excellent" before the wreck, A. R. Jones, division engineer, declared.

GUARDSMEN GET NEW DRILL DATE

Ohio Soldiers Will Abandon Camp Perry for Wisconsin Training.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio National Guardsmen will get a taste of "war" this summer in a change of scenery.

Adj. Gen. Gilson D. Light announced that instead of going to Camp Perry for two weeks of drill, the 37th division troops would join all other guardsmen of the fifthf and sixth corps areas at Camp Williams in Wisconsin for a large war game. Maneuvers are scheduled for Aug. 11-31.

The drill period this year was increased from the customary two weeks to three, permitting sufficient time for transport of guardsmen to and from Camp Williams, located near Sparta, Wis.

ADMIT DANGER IN RELATIONS OF U. S., JAPAN

But Hull and Naval Chief Say Taussig Talked Only for Himself; Japs React.

WASHINGTON — Administration officials declared today that they do not regard war between the United States and Japan as "inevitable" but admitted that relations between the two countries are dangerously tense.

The question of war was raised yesterday when Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig, testifying before a congressional committee said:

I can't see how we can avoid being forced ultimately into a war by the trend of events in the far east.

Both Secretary of State Hull and Admiral Harold Stark, chief of Naval operations, were prompt in stating that Taussig expressed only his personal feeling, and did not speak for the administration.

Japan's apparent ambition for Dutch territory has raised a question in the minds of observers in Washington as to the future status of the Netherlands West Indies should Holland's government, like that of Denmark, fall under German sway.

The Netherlands have two important possessions in the Western world: Dutch Guiana, on the northern coast of South America, a territory the size of New Jersey and Pennsylvania combined, having a population of 171,396.

The islands of Curacao and Bonaire off the coast of Venezuela and only 400 miles south of the American military and naval bases in Puerto Rico. They have a joint population of 90,870.

As these possessions fall within the scope of the Monroe Doctrine, which forbids expansion of foreign powers in the Western Hemisphere, the United States undoubtedly would resist any European or Asiatic attempt to dominate them. Also, it is considered possible that other Pan-American nations might cooperate in their protection.

'JAPANOPHOBIA?'

TOKYO—(U.P.)—Domei, Japanese news agency said today that well-informed Japanese quarters interpreted U. S. Rear Admiral Taussig's statement as an indication that the United States is "preparing to actively interfere in east Asiatic affairs."

Domei quoted informed Japanese quarters as declaring the United State's navy was "obsessed with Japanophobia." Domei added that Japanese sources said the groundless accusation on Japan was made in "order to facilitate a big naval plan."

BID FOR AID

Administration Spokesmen Ask Farm Help in Wage Fight.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Administration spokesmen today bid for farm belt support in connection with the forthcoming house fight over proposed amendments to the wage-hour law.

Three bills to modify the act in varying degrees will be brought up in the house Thursday. Principal fight appears to be centered around the proposal of Rep. Graham Barden, (D., N. C.) to exempt all agricultural workers. Exemption of white collar workers earning more than $150 a month is another controversial proposal.

Opening gun in the plea for farm support in opposing drastic changes in the law came last night from Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace. In an address over a nationwide national broadcasting company network, Wallace said the law has been a "decided benefit" to agriculture.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Excerpts From Miss Midnight's Diary.

Everything is getting so tropical around Broadway these nights (everything, that is, except the temperature) that a girl who is not attired in a sarong, a grass skirt or a ukulele, and accompanied by Jon Hall, feels she is just spoiling the atmosphere. Times Square is full of palm trees, artificial intermittent rain, hula dancers and Hawaiian storms; and lads who have never eaten anything more esoteric than the roast beef at Lindy's are choking down fish and poi and Zombies. I don't know what this will all come to—unless it's the saturation point.

The latest of the aloha places, the Hurricane, opened Wednesday night on the sight of the old Paradise, and as the inaccurate saying goes, everyone was there. And everyone, if I may mention it, seemed to be holding hands.

Photogenic Josephine Johnson was holding hands with Blaine Faber, Betty Grable's paw was cuddled in Alexis Thompson's, Helen Parrish was sighing over Forest Tucker, and Milton Berle was holding hands with his mother. Harry Richman had no one to romance but Harry Richman.

Bela Lugosi dropped in, whether it was to drink a Zombie or imitate one I don't know, and Marjorie Weaver looked so cute she was stealing the play from the grass skirts. Nobody in the audience wore anything that even resembled a sarong; Betty Grable, probably on her way to the bowling alleys, was attired in a woolen sports dress; glamor girl Johnson was soignee in a simple white dress with an ermine jacket.

As for the Hurricane, I would say the atmosphere is ten times as good as the floor show.

Plainer stuff was going on at the 48th St. Tavern when Hal LeRoy and his wife entertained a large group of friends in celebration of their wedding anniversary, and Paul Douglas, the radio announcer, gave a farewell party to Dana Dale, the beautiful model, who was leaving the next day to become a Warner Brothers starlet.

Florence Sundstrom came in on the baritone arm of Ronald ("DuBarry") Graham, and Betty Grable with the same fella, Alex Thompson, and Haila Stoddard with her spouse, Jack Kirkland, all of them making the room look very pretty.

There was some excitement in the corner presided over by John the apple-cheeked waiter. John had a telegram which read:

"Will be in town next week. Get the steak ready, and reserve your table for us." It was signed: Joel and Claudette (Colbert) Pressman.

"I knew her when she was just a kid trying to get a break around here," John explained. "She used to come in and tell me how tough it was."

The influx of Tahitian and other island-atmosphere spots hasn't had any effect on the popularity on the Latin night clubs. La Martinique and LaConga are still operating at the old stands, and still having the parquet worn out by rhumba addicts.

Adele Jergens came in with Franchot Tone, and Elinor Troy and Lyle Talbot, currently one of the town's most torrid romance teams, created quite a stir on the conga line.

Mr. and Mrs. David Selznick stopped to talk to Mr. and Mrs. George Balanchine (Zorina), Mrs. Harry Carey talked animatedly with Harry Carey and Peggy Joyce made an entrance with two swains.

At La Martinique Monday night it looked like the Home for Errant Comedians. Sitting around the room exchanging gags were Abbot and Costello, Cross and Dunn, Goodman Ace, Jay C. Flippen, and Milton Berle, which I would have considered quite a coincidence if I did not know that they were all there to catch Danny Kaye the town's newest . . . and sometimes I think the funniest. . . . comic.

And just as things were getting very gay and the wisecracks were flying past at a vaudeville rate, who should walk in, looking very somber, but Jack Benny.

Tuesday night, Connie Boswell was the most vivacious listener to Jimmy Dorsey's music at the Pennsylvania; she sat in her wheelchair, surveying the room full of orchestra leaders (Richard Himber, Lennie Hayton, Wayne King and Red Nichols), and looked as if she might burst into song at any moment, which am sorry to say she did not.

Much later the same evening, things were going on at the Kit Kat Item; Patricia Brandt started to sing for the other people at her table, and even the waiter wouldn't move away, he was so enthralled Item: Danny Kaye and Lou Costello did an impromptu comedy outline in the lobby. Item: Phillips Holmes got mad at a friend and threw a practically Shakespearian tantrum in the bar.

Some people can toss custom, protocol, and tradition out the window and get by with it in situations where other people would get nothing but a sharp reprimand from Emily Post. It passed off quite unnoticed when Eddy Duchin was introduced to Archduke Otto at the Persian room Wednesday night, and gurgled ingratiatingly:

"Very happy to meet you, Mr. Hapsburg!"

With Fred Waring and Jock Whitney within earshot, too.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Memos to me: You libeled Joe Pasternak, you lug, when you said he had produced "Rio" along with his Durbin hits. You ought to have remembered that Joe planned "Rio" for Danielle Darrieux—but had nothing to do with the picture made when Danielle couldn't come over. Stupid, to say things like that about Joe. . . .

Tell Clark Gable where you buy your suits. He ought to appreciate it, complaining as he was in "Boom Town" about that safety pin in his coat collar—the one they pinned there to mar the perfect fit so he would be in character as a new-rich oil man. "Wardrobe," said Clark, "is so used to turning out perfect clothes they forget to botch them a little for character stuff. This suit—without the collar pin—is one I could wear anywhere."

Can you make something of the fact that Bing Crosby had to have a voice double in "If I Had My Way?" No, you guess not—you would have to explain that the dubbing was done for a deep-down bass laugh, mock-villainous, when Bing couldn't hit the low notes to suit David Butler, Butler, the director, hit 'em himself, suiting Butler fine. (But Gloria Jean still things Bing is WONDERFUL!)

Speaking of Gloria—can you figure out why Basil Rathbone holds such a fatal appeal for women? The gag is Miss Jean's idol she squealed with delight when Bing gave her a medallion decorated with a profile of Rathbone. Gloria thinks Basil Rathbone is WONDERFUL.

Find out what Irene Hervey thinks of THIS business? She's in "The Boys from Syracuse" with her husband, Allan Jones. Jones plays two characters in the picture, and one of the guys is in love with Irene Hervey, but the other courts Rosemary Lane. Is that bigamy, or what?

Would you like some figures? No, you lug. I don't mean THAT kind. I mean the kind the Film Daily Year Book, just out, supplies. Like this: Hollywood spent about $165,000,000 (estimated) on movie production for the 1939-40 season had 458 actors under term contract—paid its approximately 30,000 registered extras a total of $3,121,671—but the average extra worked not quite 30 days in 1939, and his average individual earnings were $316.26 (which buys no caviar, champagne, or chinchilla).

And (if you care) there are 17,003 movie theaters operating in the U. S., with another 2,929 closed. And of these 10,031 have a "double feature policy,"—which leaves fairly little comfort for fugitives from protracted, torturous, marathon suffering. And there are more double feature theaters in the northeast than anywhere else, fewer in the south—which ought to make it true what they say about Dixie. Had enough figures? I thought so!

STOCKS SHIFT OVER HIGHER TRAIL TODAY

U. S. Steel and Shipbuilding Among List Tilting Forward; Commodities Mixed.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — (AP) — Stock market leaders shifted over a moderately higher trail in today's session.

Inclined to tilt forward fractions to around a point were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Du Pont, Union Carbide, U. S. Rubber, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Allied Mills, N. Y. Shipbuilding and Electric Boat.

Bonds improved in spots, but Commodities were a trifle mixed, as were the principal foreign securities markets.

A hopeful market straw was seen in the federal reserve summary for the week ended April 17, disclosing an increase of $37,000,000 in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of member banks.

Helpful was the comment of President Keller of the Chrysler Corp., that demand for new automobiles has been better every week since the first of the year.

THREE NAMED TO OHIO GROUP

Mansfielders to Assist In Study of State Water Supply.

Three Mansfielders were named today to serve on an Ohio C. of C. committee to study the state's water supply. The appointments were made by the Ohio organization.

All members of the Mansfield chamber, they are C. L. Van Derau, president; C. H. Keating and W. W. Purdy.

John G. Routzon, secretary, said the committee was being organized from members of chambers throughout the state for the purpose of studying the present water supply; investigation of the status of the state's water table and the development of information concerning ground water.

U. S. TREASURY REPORT

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The treasury balance on April 20 was: $2,261,175,988.03.

6 CASES LISTED

Court to Hear Divorce Cases Wednesday.

Six Richland county couples are scheduled to take their domestic troubles before Judge C. H. Huston Wednesday in common pleas court. The divorce cases will be heard by Judge Huston while he is waiting for the grand jury which opens its session today, to report.

On the calendar for Wednesday are cases involving these plaintiffs and defendants:

Stella M. Baer vs. Everett E. Baer; Virginia Baughman vs. Frederick M. Baughman; Rebecca Groscost vs. Millard Groscost; Allen Jackson vs. Ione Jackson; Burton Stinehour vs. Dolores Stinehour; Minnie Head vs. John Head.

20 Acts Included In 'Circus' To Be Staged at Y.M.C.A.

Twenty acts make up the program for the first annual Y. M. C. A. circus to be staged at 8 p. m. Thursday and Friday in the "Y" gymnasium.

The two-hour program includes acrobats, clowns, dancers, tumblers, and animals, and is to be staged by leading amateur and professional performers of Mansfield and Y. M. C. A. groups.

Among the "Y" groups taking part are the Friendly Indians, Pioneer and Senior high gym classes, Phalanx fraternity and Hi-Y clubs. Dancing and acrobatic acts will be provided by students of the Margaret Speas and Marty Hogan dance studios, and Smart's accordion band and a band comprised of junior high school students will furnish music for the show. A trained dog act will be furnished by William Duffner of Ontario.

Richard Huffman, of the Phalanx fraternity, sponsors of the circus, will act as ringmaster. Vernon Smeltzer, also of the fraternity, is general chairman, and the program is under the direction of Donald Cram, "Y" physical director.

THEATERS

Miss Davis In 'The Old Maid.'

Bette Davis is also to be seen at the Majestic theater which is showing "The Old Maid." This play won the Pulitzer award and was written by Zoe Akins. George Brent and Miriam Hopkins have principal roles in this drama. In a lighter vein is "Honeymoon in Bali" with Fred MacMurray, Madeleine Carroll and Alan Jones in the leading parts.

Bette Davis as Queen.

Beginning Wednesday at the Ritz theater is Bette Davis in "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex" with Errol Flynn. Miss Davis is cast as Queen Elizabeth, torn between her love of England and its people and her love for the handsome and dashing young Earl of Essex. The co-feature is "Llano Kid" with Tito Guizar and Gale Sondergaard in the leads. The story is based on a famous O. Henry short story "A Double-Dyed Deceiver" and the background is in Mexico.

The exploits and adventures of a family of six castaways marooned on a tropic island, forms the basis of "Swiss Family Robinson," which begins Wednesday at the Madison theater. Thomas Mitchell, Edna Best and Freddie Bartholomew are the cast. The second feature is one of the "Dr. Christian" series; this time as "The Courageous Dr. Christian." Jean Hersholt, beloved in his famed role, now conducts a one-man crusade against the twin evils of disease and bad housing.

'Dr. Kildare's Strange Case.'

It has remained for motion pictures to help bring about a better doctor-patient understanding in America. This is the view of Lew Ayres, who, in the title role of "Dr. Kildare" series, has, as a young doctor learning from his older preceptor, Lional Barrymore, placed before audiences many little known facts regarding physicians, their work and their sacrifices in the interest of the public. In this latest of the series "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case," which opens at the Ohio Wednesday, Laraine Day plays the feminine lead.

"My gas refrigerator is really wonderful. It supplies dependable food protection, freezes loads of ice cubes and desserts. It never makes a sound and costs less than 2 cents a day to operate." —Mrs. P. A. S.

"Sometime ago, we installed 16 gas refrigerators in our apartment building. We have had no maintainance expense on them whatsoever. The tenants are extremely pleased with their low operating costs and complete silence." —Mr. H. S. G.

"We recently replaced another automatic refrigerator with a gas refrigerator. What a tremendous improvement. No noise, no upkeep. Cost of operation is about one-fourth as much. It more than pays for itself." —Mrs. O. H. S.

"Five year's experience has taught me that you can't beat the gas refrigerator that freezes without moving parts. There's nothing to wear. No upkeep, lowest cost operation that never increases with age." —Mr. I. B. S.

Threat of Rain Brings New Ohio River Flood Fears

ALL BUSINESS HALTS IN LOW AREA AT CINCY

Mop and Bucket Squads Begin Cleaning Up Mud Damage in Marietta District.

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—The threat of showers today and Wednesday brought new fear to the Ohio river valley, still in the grip of floods that fell just short of disaster proportions.

Any sustained rainfall this week might send the Ohio and smaller streams upward to higher flood levels and cause heavy property damage and suspension of trade.

W. B. Schlomer, acting U. S. meteorologist at Cincinnati, said a low pressure area, carrying rain, was reported moving in from the southwest.

Business was halted in the lower Cincinnati produce district today as the Ohio river crept toward a predicted crest of 60 feet—eight feet above flood stage. The river had reached 58.22 feet this morning.

Mrs. Amelia McClure, chairman of the executive committee of the R. d Cross in Cincinnati, said 500 families were in the flood's path and would have to move before the river reaches its crest Wednesday.

Coney Island, amusement resort near Cincinnati, was under water. Backwater poured into Crosley field, where the Cincinnati Reds play. Spectators at yesterday's game with the St. Louis Cardinals saw water creep to the feet of fans in the third row of box seats.

One hundred produce dealers were in the flood zone. Three railroads moved their cars from the produce yards.

Plans were made to remove 2400 persons from their river front homes at Newport, Ky., Cincinnati suburb.

"Mop and bucket" brigades, composed mostly of Marietta college students, began cleaning up at Marietta today. The Ohio river reached a stage eight and a half feet above flood level there yesterday.

Five-sixths of the Marietta business district was under water at the worst. Most of the water was expected to be off the streets by tonight. The damage was largely from mud and water. Operation of the Muskingum conservancy district dams prevented the Muskingum river from creating a greater flood hazard at Marietta. Four hundred Marietta homes were

Every business house in Pomeroy had from two to six feet of water on the first floor after the Ohio river reached its crest there at midnight. Schools were closed today.

Carl Bowers, 25, of Pickerington, escaped injury when an iron bridge over Wakatomika creek collapsed under the weight of his dairy truck. The bridge had been weakened by the flood.

$18,000 Expansion To Be Started By Vault Firm Here

An $18,000 expansion program will be started immediately by the Mansfield Metal Vault company, it was announced today by Elmer Hedeen, president and manager.

A one-story steel and brick fireproof building will be added to the north of the present plant, which will give the company an additional 13,680 square feet of factory floor space.

The present building on Longview avenue will be remodeled to accommodate a boiler room, heating plant, and a show room. Offices will be located in the west end of the present building, Hedeen said.

Hedeen said today the present plant is totally inadequate.

EX-MANSFIELD RESIDENT DIES

Mrs. Charlotte Shrader Succumbs at Sister's Home in Newark.

Word has been received here of the death in Newark of Mrs. Charlotte Shrader, 46, former Mansfield resident. She died Monday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Helen Wintermite, 28 South 32nd street, Newark, following a brief illness.

Surviving are a son, Alford, and her mother, Mrs. Lottie Kuhn, a sister, Mrs. Wintermite, and two brothers, S. J. Kuhn of Mansfield, and Paul Kuhn of Newark. Her husband preceded her in death several years ago.

The body was removed to the McClement funeral home for funeral services at 2 p. m. Wednesday.

Officials Disagree on 'Inevitable War'

Up and Down THE STREET

Everything is being done to impress Mansfielders with the fact that next week is annual Community Fund campaign week. A number of banners have been stretched across the down town streets, one on Park avenue west, one on West Third street, one on North Main and a fourth at the public square. Besides these, 40 reflector signs have been erected over the city at vantage points. These show up at night in the glare of headlights and bear the inscription: "A worthy investment—Mansfield Community Fund. Invest now." The drive opens Monday and runs through May 4.

Eighth grade pupils in Richland county schools want careers that require uniforms and promise thrills and romance when they grow up, a questionnaire conducted in the schools indicates. Most of the boys said they wanted to be aviators, big league ball players, or bus drivers, although several of them still prefer farming. Only one wants to be a G-man. A number of the girls would like to be air hostesses and nurses, but secretarial work is also popular. One said she planned to be a "woman doctor" while another will be content to be a farmer's wife. The questions were answered by about 450 pupils in connection with an ability test.

There is a bit of spring in the "refurnishing" of Mayor W. J. Locke's private office at City building. The upholstered chairs whose brown leather backs and seats were worn to the point of shabbiness, have been re-done, this time in a colorful green leather cushions for the seat and back. Against the red mahogany wood they add a gay touch to the office.

Thirty-five Friendly House kindergarten boys and girls between the ages of 4 and 5 had their first experience in farm life this morning when they were given an opportunity to churn butter during a class period. More than a pound of butter was made by the group in a churn loaned to Mrs. Russell Gimbel, teacher, for the demonstration. After class a lunch of crackers and milk was served.

Mayor Increases Personnel of Planning Commission to 7.

Mansfield's five-member city planning commission membership was increased to seven today when Mayor W. J. Locke put into effect a stipulation of the state law which directs that in cities where there is a park commission, the president automatically becomes a member of the city planning group and that there shall be seven members on the commission.

Jack R. Balliett, 11 Euclid avenue, member of a Mansfield real estate agency, was appointed to a six-year term on the board by Mayor Locke while Roy Vaughn, as president of the park commission, automatically became a member.

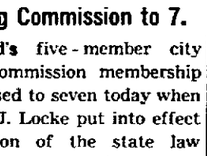

The mayor named Paul M. Eliot to fill the vacancy left by the death of Fred Altaffer. This term expires the last of 1943.

The commission is now made up of four citizen representatives, the park commission head, Mayor Locke and Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton. Citizen members are Arthur Courtney and W. C. Mansfield.

BARE GIGANTIC TIRE SWINDLE

Police Investigate Alleged $1,000,000 Racket In Buffalo, Cleveland.

(By United Press)

BUFFALO, N. Y. — Cleveland and Buffalo police authorities cooperated today in the investigation of an alleged $1,000,000 tire stealing racket.

Arrest of a local tire distributing company official and recovery of nearly 100 stolen tires were reported by Lieut. Charles Cavolo of the Cleveland police department, who came to Buffalo with two detectives to continue the inquiry.

Morris Levy, 39, Consolidated Sales company executive, was arrested yesterday on a charge of criminally receiving stolen property. Levy was accused of disposing of several thousand dollars worth of new tires, allegedly stripped from new automobiles in Cleveland and shipped here for distribution. After appearing before City Judge John Hillery, he was released in bail.

Lieut. Cavolo said the racket has been operated successfully for six years in Cleveland.

"A half dozen men have been picked up in Cleveland on suspicion of being members of the ring," he said. "Altogether we have recovered approximately 2,000 stolen tires. Almost every city in Ohio has been a distributing point."

BATTLE FOR PENNSYLVANIA DEM CONTROL REACHES CLIMAX

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Two years of fighting for control of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania reached a climax today as voters turned out to decide a noisy, free-swinging campaign battle on the Democratic side and a contrastingly serene Republican contest.

Democratic party rule hinged on U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey's fight for renomination against his chief opponent, Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man who was backed by a group of party leaders headed by Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence.

A third man in the race was fiddle-playing William N. McNair, former Pittsburgh mayor and outspoken anti-New Dealer.

Guffey, the state's 64-year-old junior senator, broke with Lawrence in the bitter 1938 primary, campaigning vigorously on a "100 per cent" New Deal record, charging Lawrence was responsible for the party rift.

Jones, 56, also bid for votes as a Roosevelt supporter, but left most of his public campaign work to his backers.

On the Republican side, party leaders were united behind the senatorial candidacy of Jay Cooke, Philadelphia banker. His opponents were Albert H. Ladner, jr., of Philadelphia, and John A. de Renzo, Altoona, publisher.

Lack of spirited issues in the campaign caused party officials to predict a light turn out among the state's 4,675,622 eligible voters—2,046,129 Democrats and 2,572,100 Republicans.

STILL MYSTERY

Cause of Wreck Which Killed 30 Unexplained by Probe.

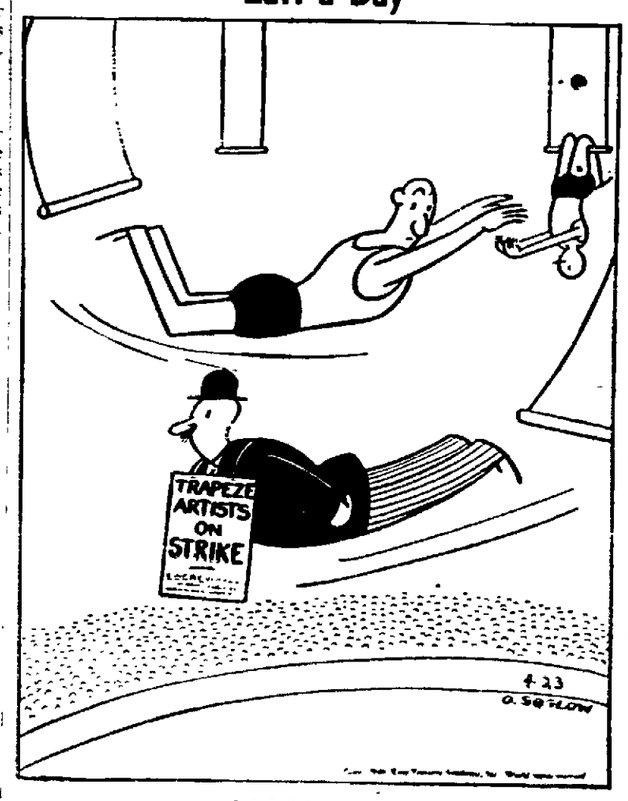

ALBANY, N. Y.—(AP)—Cause of the Little Falls, N. Y., wreck which killed 30 persons and injured 100 remains a mystery today after indefinite adjournment of an investigation producing testimony the New York Central's Lake Shore limited was in "perfect condition" before the accident.

The interstate commerce commission, New York state public service commission and the railroad recessed the inquiry while rail workers cleared up the remainder of the wreckage after removal of the last two of nine derailed cars.

Condition of some 40 victims still in Little Falls and Herkimer, N. Y., hospitals was reported unchanged.

Track and roadbed conditions at the scene of Friday night's pile-up were "excellent" before the wreck, A. R. Jones, division engineer, declared.

GUARDSMEN GET NEW DRILL DATE

Ohio Soldiers Will Abandon Camp Perry for Wisconsin Training.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Ohio National Guardsmen will get a taste of "war" this summer in a change of scenery.

Adj. Gen. Gilson D. Light announced that instead of going to Camp Perry for two weeks of drill, the 37th division troops would join all other guardsmen of the fifthf and sixth corps areas at Camp Williams in Wisconsin for a large war game. Maneuvers are scheduled for Aug. 11-31.

The drill period this year was increased from the customary two weeks to three, permitting sufficient time for transport of guardsmen to and from Camp Williams, located near Sparta, Wis.

ADMIT DANGER IN RELATIONS OF U. S., JAPAN

But Hull and Naval Chief Say Taussig Talked Only for Himself; Japs React.

WASHINGTON — Administration officials declared today that they do not regard war between the United States and Japan as "inevitable" but admitted that relations between the two countries are dangerously tense.

The question of war was raised yesterday when Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig, testifying befor a congressional committee said:

I can't see how we can avoid being forced ultimately into a war by the trend of events in the far east.

Both Secretary of State Hull and Admiral Harold Stark, chief of Naval operations, were prompt in stating that Taussig expressed only his personal feeling, and did not speak for the administration.

Japan's apparent ambition for Dutch territory has raised a question in the minds of observers in Washington as to the future status of the Netherlands West Indies should Holland's government, like that of Denmark, fall under German sway.

The Netherlands have two important possessions in the Western world: Dutch Guiana, on the northern coast of South America, a territory the size of New Jersey and Pennsylvania combined, having a population of 171,386.

The islands of Curacao and Bonaire off the coast of Venezuela and only 400 miles south of the American military and naval bases in Puerto Rico. They have a joint population of 90,870.

As these possessions fall within the scope of the Monroe Doctrine, which forbids expansion of foreign powers in the Western Hemisphere, the United States undoubtedly would resist any European or Asiatic attempt to dominate them. Also, it is considered possible that other Pan-American nations might cooperate in their protection.

'JAPANOPHOBIA'?

TOKYO—(U.P.)—Domei, Japanese news agency said today that well-informed Japanese quarters interpreted U. S. Rear Admiral Taussig's statement as an indication that the United States is "preparing to actively interfere in east Asiatic affairs."

Domei quoted informed Japanese quarters as declaring the United State's navy was "obsessed with Japanophobia." Domei added that Japanese sources said the groundless accusation on Japan was made in "order to facilitate a big naval plan."

BID FOR AID

Administration Spokesmen Ask Farm Help in Wage Fight.

WASHINGTON— (U.P.) —Administration spokesmen today bid for farm belt support in connection with the forthcoming house fight over proposed amendments to the wage-hour law.

Three bills to modify the act in varying degrees will be brought up in the house Thursday. Principal fight appears to be centered around the proposal of Rep. Graham Barden, (D., N. C.) to exempt all agricultural workers. Exemption of white collar workers earning more than $150 a month is another controversial proposal.

Opening gun in the plea for farm support in opposing drastic changes in the law came last night from Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace. In an address over a nationwide national broadcasting company network, Wallace said the law has been a "decided benefit" to agriculture.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Excerpts From Miss Midnight's Diary.

Everything is getting so tropical around Broadway these nights (everything, that is, except the temperature) that a girl who is not attired in a sarong, a grass skirt or a ukulele, and accompanied by Jon Hall, feels she is just spoiling the atmosphere. Times Square is full of palm trees, artificial intermittent rain, hula dancers and Hawaiian storms; and lads who have never eaten anything more esoteric than the roast beef at Lindy's are choking down fish and poi and Zombies. I don't know what this will all come to—unless it's the saturation point.

The latest of the aloha places, the Hurricane, opened Wednesday night on the sight of the old Paradise, and as the inaccurate saying goes, everyone was there. And everyone, if I may mention it, seemed to be holding hands.

Photogenic Josephine Johnson was holding hands with Blaine Faber, Betty Grable's paw was cuddled in Alexis Thompson's, Helen Parrish was sighing over Forest Tucker, and Milton Berle was holding hands with his mother. Harry Richman had no one to romance but Harry Richman.

Bela Lugosi dropped in, whether it was to drink a Zombie or imitate one I don't know, and Marjorie Weaver looked so cute she was stealing the play from the grass skirts. Nobody in the audience wore anything that even resembled a sarong; Betty Grable, probably on her way to the bowling alleys, was attired in a woolen sports dress; glamor girl Johnson was soignee in a simple white dress with an ermine jacket.

As for the Hurricane, I would say the atmosphere is ten times as good as the floor show.

Plainer stuff was going on at the 48th St. Tavern when Hal LeRoy and his wife entertained a large group of friends in celebration of their wedding anniversary, and Paul Douglas, the radio announcer, gave a farewell party to Dana Dale, the beautiful model, who was leaving the next day to become a Warner Brothers starlet.

Florence Sundstrom came in on the baritone arm of Ronald ("DuBarry") Graham, and Betty Grable with the same fella, Alex Thompson, and Haila Stoddard with her spouse, Jack Kirkland, all of them making the room look very pretty.

There was some excitement in the corner presided over by John the apple-cheeked waiter. John had a telegram which read:

"Will be in town next week. Get the steak ready, and reserve your table for us." It was signed: Joel and Claudette (Colbert) Pressman.

"I knew her when she was just a kid trying to get a break around here," John explained. "She used to come in and tell me how tough it was."

The influx of Tahitian and other island-atmosphere spots hasn't had any effect on the popularity on the Latin night clubs. La Martinique and LaConga are still operating at the old stands, and still having the parquet worn out by rhumba addicts.

Adele Jergens came in with Franchot Tone, and Elinor Troy and Lyle Talbot, currently one of the town's most torrid romance teams, created quite a stir on the conga line.

Mr. and Mrs. David Selznick stopped to talk to Mr. and Mrs. George Balanchine (Zorina), Mrs. Harry Carey talked animatedly with Harry Carey and Peggy Joyce made an entrance with two swains...

At La Martinique Monday night it looked like the Home for Errant Comedians. Sitting around the room exchanging gags were Abbot and Costello, Cross and Dunn, Goodman Ace, Jay C. Flippen, and Milton Berle, which I would have considered quite a coincidence if I did not know that they were all there to catch Danny Kaye the town's newest . . . and sometimes I think the funniest. . . . comic.

And just as things were getting very gay and the wisecracks were flying past at a vaudeville rate, who should walk in, looking very somber, but Jack Benny.

Tuesday night, Connie Boswell was the most vivacious listener to Jimmy Dorsey's music at the Pennsylvania; she sat in her wheelchair, surveying the room full of orchestra leaders (Richard Himber, Lennie Hayton, Wayne King and Red Nichols), and looked as if she might burst into song at any moment, which am sorry to say she did not.

Much later the same evening, things were going on at the Kit Kat Item; Patricia Brandt started to sing for the other people at her table, and even the waiter wouldn't move away, he was so enthralled Item: Danny Kaye and Lou Costello did an impromptu comedy outline in the lobby. Item: Phillips Holmes got mad at a friend and threw a practically Shakespearian tantrum in the bar.

Some people can toss custom, protocol, and tradition out the window and get by with it in situations where other people would get nothing but a sharp reprimand from Emily Post. It passed off quite unnoticed when Eddy Duchin was introduced to Archduke Otto at the Persian room Wednesday night, and gurgled ingratiatingly:

"Very happy to meet you, Mr. Hapsburg!"

With Fred Waring and Jock Whitney within earshot, too.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Memos to me: You libeled Joe Pasternak, you lug, when you said he had produced "Rio" along with his Durbin hits. You ought to have remembered that Joe planned "Rio" for Danielle Darrieux—but had nothing to do with the picture made when Danielle couldn't come over. Stupid, to say things like that about Joe. . . .

Tell Clark Gable where you buy your suits. He ought to appreciate it, complaining as he was in "Boom Town" about that safety pin in his coat collar—the one they pinned there to mar the perfect fit so he would be in character as a new-rich oil man. "Wardrobe," said Clark, "is so used to turning out perfect clothes they forget to botch them a little for character stuff. This suit—without the collar pin—is one I could wear anywhere."

Can you make something of the fact that Bing Crosby had to have a voice double in "If I Had My Way?" No, you guess not—you would have to explain that the dubbing was done for a deep-down bass laugh, mock-villainous, when Bing couldn't hit 'em himself, suiting Butler fine. (But Gloria Jean still things Bing is WONDERFUL!)

Speaking of Gloria—can you figure out why Basil Rathbone holds such a fatal appeal for women? The guy is Miss Jean's idol she squealed with delight when Bing gave her a medallion decorated with a profile of Rathbone. Gloria thinks Basil Rathbone is WONDERFUL.

Find out what Irene Hervey thinks of THIS business? She's in "The Boys from Syracuse" with her husband, Allan Jones. Jones plays two characters in the picture, and one of the guys is in love with Irene Hervey, but the other courts Rosemary Lane. Is that bigamy, or what?

Would you like some figures? No, you lug, I don't mean THAT kind. I mean the kind the Film Daily Year Book, just out, supplies. Like this: Hollywood spent about $165,000,000 (estimated) on movie production for the 1939-40 season—had 458 actors under term contract—paid its approximately 10,000 registered extras a total of $3,124,671—but the average extra worked not quite 30 days in 1939, and his average individual earnings were $316.26 (which buys no caviar, champagne, or chinchilla).

And (if you care) there are 17,003 movie theaters operating in the U. S., with another 2,029 closed. And of these 10,031 have a "double feature policy."—which leaves fairly little comfort for fugitives from protracted, tortuous, marathon sitting. And there are more double feature theaters in the northeast than anywhere else; fewer in the south—which ought to make it true what they say about Dixie. Had enough figures? I thought so!

Reds Make Best Showing of Any Major League Club

(By Associated Press)

THE CINCINNATI REDS are making all the so-called experts who backed them to repeat for the National league pennant look good.

At the end of the first water-logged week of the schedule they are at the top of their circuit with three games won and none lost, but that isn't the whole story.

They never have been behind in any of the games. Their three prize pitchers have gone the full nine-inning route in every case. No more than one run has been scored against them in any contest. The team hasn't committed a single error.

The 6-1 depth bomb they set off under the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday was the most emphatic indication the champions could have given that they are travelling the same trail they took a year ago.

They made a mockery of the challenge the Cards were supposed to be readying this season. They paddled three pitchers for nine hits and bunched three runs in both the third and eighth innings behind the effective seven-hit hurling of Bucky Walters.

In five games since the season opened, the Cards have lost four and used 15 pitchers, including Clyde Shoun for fractions of four games and three days in a row.

One week doesn't make a season, but a champion has to win approximately 95 games and a victory now counts just as much as one in August or September.

Right now the club the Reds' probably are watching closest is Brooklyn, undefeated, untied and unscored upon in two games.

Rain and snow prevented any eastern games in either league yesterday. In the other western game of the National league, the Pittsburgh Pirates continued undefeated with a 9-5 verdict over the Chicago Cubs. It was a wild home opener for the Buccaneers, with 19 hits, 12 bases on balls and six errors making everything uncertain.

Willis Hudlin added another good pitching performance to the Cleveland Indians' totem with a seven-hit job that stopped the St. Louis Browns 5-2 and lifted the Tribe into a tie with the idle Boston Red Sox for first place in the American league.

The Detroit Tigers put across two runs in the ninth on Earl Averill's pinch single to beat the Chicago White Sox 6-5 and give Rookie Dick Conger credit for his first major league victory on one inning's effort.

The Sox relied on another freshman, Vallie Eaves, who did an amazing job of holding the enemy to three runs in seven and two-third innings during which he gave seven hits, 12 bases on balls and made two wild pitches. Yet Clint Brown was charged with the loss.

Lynn Nelson of Detroit was struck on the head by a line drive and Luke Appling of Chicago was spiked on the knee during the game, but neither was hurt seriously.

FISHING FOR FUN

Tips On Casting: 1

By MILTON KRAFT
(National All-Around Champion)

GETTING STARTED

GOOD fly and bait casting requires no unusual physical endowments. What is needed is simply intelligent application and practice—and good casting pays the fisherman big dividends in pleasure and in catch.

* * *

There is no rule regarding beginner's tackle. The best plan is to consult one's local sporting goods dealer, and practice casting with the same equipment that is required for actual fishing in one's own local waters.

For expert tournament casters the rod, reel and line are highly technical subjects. But the immense majority of America's 13,000,000 fishermen doubtless are interested only in adept handling of their tackle on lake or stream.

The student must determine to practice and I strongly recommend that two or more anglers work together. Only the expert knows the exact inclination he is giving his own rod, and the way his line is behaving above or behind him. But partners can correct, coach and inform each other.

Try to affiliate with a casting club. If this is not possible practice on a body of water or lawn—even in your own back yard.

* * *

Before you start casting visualize yourself rod in hand, standing sidewise in a huge clock-dial. When the rod is held pointing straight up it is in the "12 o'clock position." Pointed straight forward, it corresponds to a clock hand at 3. Other figures on the dial denote other inclinations of the rod. These angles are highly important, as we shall see in our next lesson.

Mansfield Braves Hold Lengthy Practice Session

BULLETIN

Robert Tallman, 20, catcher, from Cheyenne, Wyo., on option from the Cedar Rapids club of the Three-I league, was returned to that team today by the Mansfield Braves, Manager Dewey Stover announced. Tallman, who joined the camp April 10, was released by Stover after he turned up with an injured knee. He is the first prospect to be released by the team.

THE MANSFIELD BRAVES held their first practice game of the season at the Fairground yesterday and club officials were not disappointed in the way the lads performed

Some 33 youngsters are still on the roster, but it was expected that officials will start handing out releases after today's workout.

Yesterday was the first time the team has been able to hold a lengthy infield workout. Bob Arnold, righthander, and a regular last year, was among the pitchers taking their turn on the hill. Kress also did mound duty.

A five-hour session was held yesterday and it is probable that it will be repeated today as officials rush to have the club in shape for the opener against the Lima Pandas Wednesday, May 1, at the Fairground.

10 Additional Entries for Relays Brings List to 35

TEN additional entries filed today brings to 35 the total of high schools ready to participate in the 14th renewal of the Mansfield Relays at Stadium field Saturday.

Leading the group of new entries is Akron North which will send 33 athletes here. Other schools and the number of youths are: Elyria 20; Cleveland West 4; Columbus South 12; Ashland 11; Akron Garfield 25; Bucyrus 15; Fremont 15 and Mansfield 35.

INITIAL PRACTICE

Manager Hedges will take his Tinkey Lumber softball team to Maple Lake park for their initial practice of the season tonight. The team will be entered in the Commercial league this year.

COPS DECISION

DAYTON —(AP)— Joe Marinelli, Dayton featherweight, won a unanimous but unpopular 10-round decision over Jimmy Gilligan of Buffalo, N. Y., last night. Marinelli weighed 129 and Gilligan 124.

Milnar Takes Mound

Makes Bid for Berth on Indians' 'Big Four'; Hudlin Wins, 5-2.

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—In football jargon, it's fourth down and one to go for the Cleveland Indians.

Three of the pitchers selected by Manager Oscar Vitt for his "big four" have hurled impressive victories. Today it's Al Milnar's turn.

Willis Hudlin joined Bob Feller and Johnny Allen in the winner class yesterday with a well-pitched 5 to 2 decision over the Browns.

The veteran right-hander, starting his 15th season with the Redskins, limited St. Louis to seven scattered hits and issued only one pass.

The Indians blasted Southpaw Howard Mills from the box in the first inning, scoring five runs before a batter was retired.

Lou Boudreau walked to start the game and raced to third as Mills threw wild on Roy Weatherly's tap to the box. Ben Chapman doubled, Hal Trosky was passed intentionally and Jeff Heath followed with a lusty triple to clear the bases. Ken Keltner doubled Heath home before Bill Trotter halted the barrage.

The Browns picked up their two runs in the second on Walter Judnich's single and Harland Clift's circuit smash.

Boudreau and Ray Mack, the highly touted second base combination, made their first double play of the season in the third inning. The Indians played errorless ball, giving Hudlin brilliant support throughout the game.

* * *

Vernon Kennedy was the St. Louis nominee for the second game of the series. The Indians tangle with the Browns again tomorrow and then return to Cleveland to meet the White Sox twice before starting their first eastward swing.

Mansfield Tire Bowlers Dine

Foremen Team Gets Trophy At Annual Banquet.

Approximately 100 Mansfield Tire & Rubber Company bowlers gathered in the Moose lodge last night to attend the annual banquet and meeting of the Mansfield Tire League bowlers.

Following the banquet Col. P. H. Ober, vice president and general manager of the company, presented the Foremen team with a trophy. The trophy will remain in their possession if they win the league championship for the next two years.

Bill Fenn was also presented with a medal for the 467 he rolled in the A. B. C. Bowling tournament held in Detroit.

C. L. Willsey, treasurer of the company, and Mike Meder, manager of the Meder alleys, gave brief speeches. Ober was elected honorary president; Frank Lichtenberger, president; and Earl Troll, secretary, for the coming season at the meeting.

COMMISSION MEETS

The Y. M. C. A. softball commission will discuss entry blanks and final rules for their four softball leagues at its second organization meeting to be held at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Y. M. C. A.

'Babe' Meder Scores 300 Game

"BABE" MEDER has been knocking off some spectacular scores on the alleys for several years—but he has never marked up a perfect score.

That is until last night. Meder, bowling a special match with McBride at the Meder alleys, mowed the maples down in brilliant fashion to accomplish the feat every kegler dreams of.

Meder, who has been unable to successfully bust the 700-mark, this year, also turned the trick. He opened with his perfect score, added a 225 and came in with a 179 for a 704 total.

It marks the first time a "300" has been rolled at the alleys this year.

Red Streaks' 880-Yard Relay Team

Here's the Mansfield high Red Streaks' 880-yard relay team as it exchanges the baton during practice on the cinder path at Stadium field yesterday. Left to right are Elroy Jones, Richard Burns, Charles Grant and Fred Atwater. Coach Harry Mehock believes the team will give a good account of itself in the Mansfield Relays Saturday.

HOLDS FIRST PRACTICE

Liberty Park baseball team will hold its first practice of the year at 5:30 p. m. Thursday at the park and all candidates are requested to report to Manager Art Warner. The practice is open to everyone.

Dizzy's Future Still Uncertain

Cub Brain Trust Deliberates Over Great One's Fate.

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—The brain trust of the Chicago Cubs hasn't made up its mind yet on the future of Dizzy Dean.

So the talkative righthander will get another starting assignment Thursday when the Cubs open a home series with the Cincinnati Reds.

The St. Louis Cards knocked Dean out of the box Sunday at Chicago in the fifth inning, combing him for seven hits and five runs. But Manager Gabby Hartnett says the once-great moundsman will have ample opportunity to prove his worth.

"I didn't think Diz had as much against the Cards as he had against the Browns in an exhibition game. (Dean held the Browns to two hits and no runs in five innings several weeks ago.) But he'll get every chance to prove himself. I'll give him his regular turn until we reach some definite result."

Hall Retains Grapple Title at Armory

STACY HALL, world's light-heavyweight wrestling champ, successfully defended his title in the feature match of last night's Quality club show in the Armory.

Defeating Davey Reynolds of Cedar Rapids, Ia., Hall has proved himself master of most of the light-heavies to appear here this season.

Although Reynolds is classified as a junior light heavyweight, he gave Hall plenty of trouble last night. Time after time Hall was pressed to the utmost to keep Davy from wresting from him his coveted gold belt.

Hall won the first fall in 14 minutes of the classiest grappling displayed here in many a week. He finally succeeded in clamping Reynolds in the Figure 4 body scissors to win the fall.

Reynolds had been so slippery and hard to down in the first heat Hall was prepared to do away with Davey in record time in the second setto. He rushed from his corner towards Reynolds, but met Davey's feet planted squarely in his solar plexis. When Reynolds lands his kangaroo kick in a grappler's mid-section, champ or no champ, they are going down. This fall required only the few seconds it took Referee Miller to count out the champ.

Hall was more cautious in the remaining fall. He tried all his tricks on Reynolds, and when all were of no avail, Hall finally had to resort to kicking and jabbing to dispose of Davey. It required 12 minutes to clamp the Iowan in the Figure 4 for the deciding fall.

Due to the failure of Bob Steele's opponent to appear, the feature attraction was presented first. After a 5 minutes' rest, Reynolds returned to meet Bob in the preliminary match. Battling for 26 minutes with any grappler is tough work, but to wrestle the champ that long and then take on a fresh opponent is a test of anyone's stamina. But Davey returned and grappled Bob Steele to a 20-minute draw.

Heinie the Hun and Bull Marino turned on the heat in the second main attraction last night. Heinie discarded most of his old tricks but still irritated the fans with his "tape" trick, and finally turned Bull into the crab hold to win the first fall in 9 minutes.

Bull shot the works in the second setto and beat Heinie to the mat in 4½ minutes. Heinie returned to win the deciding fall in 4 minutes, again with the crab hold.

Bucky Walters Turns Back Cardinals, 6-1

BULLETIN

CINCINNATI — (U.P.) — The game between the Cincinnati Reds and the St. Louis Cardinals, scheduled for today, was postponed by General Manager Warren C. Giles of the Cincinnati club when flood waters from the Ohio river backed onto Crosley Field.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Today looks like a bad one for professional baseball in the city of its birth.

The trouble isn't overhead in the clouds and there's no Tuesday blue law against the sport, but underfoot is old man River, water backed up Mill Creek from the stream called in better times "Beautiful Ohio."

He's creeping up, not with the surge and bluster of other years, for this is a quiet flood now. But he's creeping up just the same and at 10 a. m. General Manager Warren C. Giles of the Cincinnati Reds looks Groundskeeper Matty Schwab in the eye and asks, "Matty, do we play today?"

Paul Derringer, who has had a lot of rainy rest since his opening day victory over the Chicago Cubs, and Morton Cooper are the pitchers if there are any.

When the Reds took the long end of the 6-1 score off the field yesterday, the water was edging around the boxes and the dugouts were full. It may be assumed that there is no game tomorrow if the weather bureau is right in its prediction of a 60-foot crest then. That stage covers the pitcher's mound and handicaps the well-played ball game.

Schwab stayed up with his beloved field all night trying to work out some protection. He thought he might try sealing the outfield drains so that the water couldn't back up through them.

While the folks in the front boxes pulled their feet higher and higher, Bucky Walters pitched himself methodically to his first victory yesterday. As is his custom, he helped himself by knocking in half the Reds' runs with a single and a long fly.

* * *

The Reds kept their records clean. They have committed no errors so far this year. In each of the three games the opposition has scored just one run. Bucky almost had a shutout but opened his heart to the Cards in the ninth for their one score.

BOWLING SCORES

CLARENCE "BUD" WINDSOR today is sitting on top of the world as far as his bowling game is concerned. Battling to break the 600-mark, Windsor saw his dream come true last night when he collected a nifty 654 while bowling with the Dominion team in a Commercial C league match at the Meder alleys.

He scored his total on games of 166, 254 and 234. Clyde Ritter was the only other kegler to crash into the 600 field last night. He punched out a 623.

Declares 1,800 In Cuyahoga County Are Communists

WITNESS WON'T REVEAL NAMES IN MEMBERSHIP

Clashes With Dies on Possible Allegiance to Russia in Event of War.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Andrew Rudolph Onda, secretary of the Communist party in Cleveland, told the Dies committee today that there were 1,800 communists in Cuyahoga county, in which Cleveland is located, but he refused to identify any members or produce any party records.

The 36-year-old witness clashed repeatedly with Chairman Martin Dies and other committeemen.

"I know that other people whose names have been mentioned here find it difficult to hold jobs," Onda testified, "and I don't want to be a party to that."

"Well, you claim to be members of a legal political party, yet you refuse to give us names or any information," Dies reported.

Onda testified that he kept no party records and therefore could produce none; that he knew nothing of the national party system of recording memberships. He also said that he headed the Ohio branch of the 1932 hunger march on Washington, "when we were forced to sleep in the street here," and that he was national chairman of the unemployed councils in 1934.

The witness was dismissed after a heated exchange with Dies over where his allegiance would be in event of war between the United States and Russia.

"Is there such a war?" Onda demanded. "If there was a war between the north and the south, whom would you support? When the war comes, you call me and I'll give you my answer."

As Onda left the stand, Rep. J. Parnell Thomas, (R., N. J.), commented that "he is like all the others." The committee has cited five prevous Communist witnesses for contempt.

Onda identified Yetta Land as Ohio state chairman of the Communists. "You can get that information with a two-cent stamp," he flared.

He denied that he had any records or correspondence of any type. "I throw them in the waste basket," he explained.

APPEALS SUIT

Wage Hour Division Charges That Porters Were Underpaid.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A notice of appeal by the wage-hour division from dismissal of an injunction suit against the Cincinnati Union Terminal Co., is on file today in the U. S. District court. The division, charging porters or "red caps" were not paid a legal minimum wage, sought to restrain the company from alleged violation of the fair labor standards act.

After the suit was filed, the company started a new payment plan which is said guaranteed the minimum wage.

into an advanced guard for the losing attack on German troops near Lillehammer.

German observers placed the Canadian contingent at between 2,500 and 3,000 men.

The British already realize the extent of their setback, German quarters declared, and therefore are beginning to minimize the importance of their Norwegian venture.

At 6 p. m. today all regions 60 miles north of Trondheim remained in German hands, the announcement declared, although scattered contingents of German and British troops still were locked in combat.

The major part of a Norwegian division operating southeast of Stavanger has surrendered, it was said.

Previously, the official war communique stated that the allied forces had retreated 60 miles northeast of Trondheim.

TALKS ON 'LIGHT'

Rotary Club Speaker Tells of Future in Lighting.

A demonstration of modern lighting achievements accompanied the talk given at today's Rotary club meeting by Samuel G. Hibben, of New York, director of applied lighting of the Westinghouse company.

"A rainbow of promise is spreading across the scientific horizon," said the speaker, whose subject was "Lighting of the Future."

He explained variations in wave lengths as accounting for what is known as "visible light" and also for the rays which have curative, germicidal and illuminative qualities already being used in many medical and commercial ways.

L. E. Osborne was program chairman of the meeting and Paul J. Schiska was introduced as a new member of the club.

Fred Tracy, chairman of a special conference attendance committee, reported that Mansfield Rotary would be well represented at tomorrow's sessions of the district conference at Lima.

500 Attend Dance Revue Given By Mansfield Studio

The annual dance revue of the Herrick Twins studio was presented last night in Senior high school auditorium before approximately 500 persons.

More than 30 children and grown-ups presented an entertaining two-hour show, including tap and comedy dance numbers, comedy skits, singing, skate dancing, and whistling solos.

The high school orchestra played during the intermission. The program was sponsored by the Mansfield Athletic association.

James Brownscombe was master of ceremonies, while piano accompaniment for the song and dance numbers was played by Mrs. Albert Gump and Russel Staninger. Joe Atton was featured as a whistler and Gene Gump presented several comedy numbers.

HEARING OPENS IN WAGE CASE

Dry Cleaning Firm Cited For Violating Pay-Hour Code, Denies Charge.

Hearing on two charges of violation of the state wage and hour law filed against the Peter Pan Dry Cleaning company opened today in municipal court. Testimony was continuing this afternoon.

The company and its manager, Viola Gills, were cited last week in state affidavits, charging them with paying women workers $14 a week in violation of the state minimum wage law, and with failure to keep daily records of each workers' time and wages.

Three witnesses were heard for the state this morning. They were Dorothy Krebs, representative of the state industrial department; and two employes of the Peter Pan company, Wanda Teofilo and Jane Miner. The women testified that they had worked 52 hours a week, 11 hours on some days, and had been paid $14 for their service with 14 cents off for social security.

The state alleges that the pay received did not conform to state regulations in the dry cleaning industry.

Company representatives told the court they would deny the charges this afternoon and would prove that the women did not work 52 hours and that the $14 did not cover a full week's work.

A number of witnesses were to be heard this afternoon for the defendants.

LECTURER LAUGHS, LISTENERS JOIN IN, EVERYBODY'S AT EASE

Experimentation with group laughter as a means of reducing inward tension which makes people unattractive was conducted by Mrs. Jessie Burrall Eubank, lecturer and teacher, Monday afternoon at the Park Avenue Baptist church. Starting to laugh herself, she soon had the entire audience laughing and at ease.

Mrs. Eubank, who is conducting a seminar in creative living this week in Mansfield, spoke Monday afternoon and evening on the possibility of releasing energies of the mind. Joseph Pival presented a violin solo at last night's meetings.

Mrs. Eubank said, "There is nothing the 14,000,000,000 brain cells cannot be led to accomplish if they are guided and directed rightly.

"Even the most ordinary person can achieve extraordinary things through industry, discipline and prayer which is cooperation with God for getting the things we believe God wants us to have."

Mrs. Eubank will speak at 7:30 p. m. today at the Baptist church and Wednesday and Thursday at 2 p. m. and at 7:30 p. m. Members of the Mansfield Baptist association will be guests at tonight's meeting when she will answer some of the questions on personal problems which were submitted Sunday night.

Teachers and officers of the various church schools will be guests Wednesday night when Mrs. Eubank, who organized and taught classes enrolling 1,900, will speak following a covered-dish supper at 6:30 p. m. for the officers and teachers of the church schools.

Two Senior High Students Place High In Exams

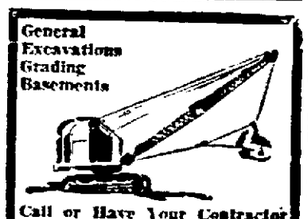

Two Senior high school students ranked in the upper five per cent among high school students in the general state scholarship tests given early this month, John C. Stoug, chairman of the test committee, announced yesterday.

High ranking students are Maxine Hartmann and Robert Sheriff. The pair were among the upper 25 per cent of the 45 Mansfield students who took the examination, and were in the upper five per cent of the 5,616 students from over the state who participated.

Miss Hartmann led the Mansfield group with a score of 241 out of a possible 300, and Sheriff had a score of 236 out of 300.

Flying Students Take Test, Start Wait for Grades

Young flying enthusiasts from Mansfield and vicinity who last night finished their ground school instructions with an examination will be anxiously sitting beside the telephone or keepng a watchful eye on the mailman for the next couple of weeks.

They will be waiting for the results of ten weeks of hard studying and 72 hours of classroom work which will tell whether or not they will be the lucky ones to receive flying instructions at the government's expense.

Major E. H. Jose, Chicago, the government's private flying instructor, conducted the examination. The ten ranking highest in the exam will, if they pass a rigid physical examination, receive flight training which will enable them to apply for a private pilot's license.

James R. "Bud" Harrington, airport manager conducted the ground school classes and will serve as instructor in the actual flight training.

SAYS RUSSIA WON'T INVADE SWEDISH AREA

Spokes Declares Way Open to Agreements With France and Great Britain.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Soviet Russia has no aggressive intentions against either Finland or Sweden. Her agreement with Nazi Germany is absolutely non-political. Therefore she will conclude any agreement with Great Britain which coincides with her own interests, regardless of the reich's reaction.

These two unequivocal declarations, of immense importance in Europe's frenzied diplomatic warfare, were made to International News Service today by the most authoritative Soviet spokesman in London.

They came at the conclusion of a long argument devoted to illustrating Russia's "real neutrality as contrasted with Italian non-belligerency."

As regards Finland, the spokesman declared that appointment of Dr. Juho Paasikivi as Finnish minister to Moscow was a clear sign of Russo-Finnish good-will. Only some unfriendly Finnish move, he declared, can upset the present calm situation, and this is unlikely."

The present fortified safety of Leningrad and Kronstadt and occupation of Hangoe reduces Soviet interest in Sweden's fate, the spokesman said. "But we hope she will not fall victim to either belligerent in Europe's war."

On the other hand, the spokesman said, Russia is intensely interested in the Balkans and will not "remain unconcerned" if they are invaded by any power, including Germany and Italy.

"We and Turkey share a common determination not to allow any other big power to encroach upon the Black sea," he said.

"It is ridiculous to assume that we would participate in reported division of zones of influence among ourselves, Italy and Germany.

"Our desire to keep the Balkans out of the theatre of war made us refrain from taking Bessarabia, which is historically ours, and we certainly will not let other nations invade it."

The spokesman admitted that Soviet interests extended to Yugoslavia, but he declined to predict Russian action in event of Italian invasion there. "Such a step would inflame the Balkans," he said. "Our action would depend upon events."

PICK DELEGATE FOR HI-Y MEET

Six Mansfield Clubs Get Set For Oberlin Congress.

Charles Sweet of the Ralph Chapman Hi-Y club was elected delegate to the third national Hi-Y Congress at Oberlin in June at a joint meeting of six Mansfield Hi-Y clubs at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Sweet will represent the Mansfield clubs at the congress which is expected to draw some 1,200 high school boys from throughout the country. Myron Miller of the George Williams club and William Abele of Eta Iota Upsilon Hi-Y were elected alternates.

Three other delegates and a leader are to be chosen from District No. 10, which includes Mansfield. They will be elected from other clubs in the district.

Late War Flashes

LONDON—(AP)—The German-controlled radio at Oslo was quoted today by Reuters (British news agency) as saying that all Norwegians and foreigners in German-occupied areas in Norway must surrender their arms by Sunday or face the death penalty.

BERLIN —(AP)— Adolf Hitler today sent Josef Terboven, one of his youngest and most spirited district leaders, to Norway to take over the civil administration in the occupied area.

District governor of the Essen area, who also holds the title of state councillor, Terboven is only 42.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—The German press opened an attack on Sweden today, warning the Stockholm government that it would be "bitterly serious" to permit Swedish newspapers to continue publication of dispatches reflecting on the Nazi armed forces.

STOCKHOLM —(INS)— Two Russian diplomats were reported missing today after leaving the Soviet legation at Oslo to escort their families from the Norwegian war zone. Reports to Stockholm said the two men may have been killed.

STROEMSTAD, Sweden—(U.P.) Four large German transports escorted by two destroyers were sighted early today moving north along the Swedish coast. They were believed to be en route to Norway with reinforcements.

ROME — (INS) — Major "constructive" decisions affecting the relations between Italy and Great Britain may be expected before the week is out, International News Service was informed on highest authority today. It was said that unless conditions change radically and unexpectedly, Italy may be counted upon to retain her status of "non-belligerency" almost indefinitely.

BRUSSELS, Belgium—(INS)— Belgian anti-aircraft batteries suddenly opened fire today on a foreign plane sighted flying over the city. Lunchtime crowds thronging the streets were shocked by the sudden fusilade.

RICHLAND G. O. P. STARTS 1-SIDED VOTE CAMPAIGN

State Candidates to Appear at Dinner Thursday; Dems Take 'Hands Off' Stand.

First county organization move of the primary campaign which has only three more weeks to go, will be made Thursday night by Republicans who will stage a county-wide dinner meeting and rally at party headquarters on North Main street.

With the primary election just three weeks away, neither party organization has made an endorsement of a candidate or held an open meeting. Democratic leaders said today they had no rallies scheduled before the primary and know of no state candidate who planned to speak here.

Dudley White, Republican candidate for the nomination for U. S. senator, will head the G. O. P. lid-lifter activities at the Thursday night meeting which is in charge of Republican women's organization.

Others scheduled to speak briefly are P. H. Rogers, candidate for state senator in the 27th-29th district; R. R. Bangham, candidate for state auditor, and Judge H. W. Jewell, seeking the nomination for a place on the Ohio supreme court.

County candidates have been invited to attend and will be introduced following the dinner at 6:30 p. m.

Neither party organization plans to make primary campaign endorsements, and the Democrats believe the best way to stay neutral is not to hold rallies, party men said.

G. A. Baer, county Democratic central committee chairman, said the Democratic candidates for county, state and national officers would be "on their own in the primary" so far as the Democratic central committee is concerned.

TRAFFIC GROUP CALLS FOR TIPS FROM CITIZENS

Asks Public to Suggest How City's Problem Can Be Alleviated.

spared for traffic duty. Yet safety organizations and students of traffic insist that to do a real job of enforcement it requires sixteen traffic men for a city of 40,000. There is city after city in this country of our approximate size with twice the police per 1,000 population.

Interested as we all are in traffic, it must still be remembered that parking enforcement is after all inconsequential as compared to molestation of children, robbery, and countless other police problems. Obviously, when the police force is small, parking regulations become a "fill in" job rather than a full time endeavor.

Most citizens ask for more enforcement, but the committee believes that we may already have more enforcement than most people realize. With an average month of between 300 and 400 tickets, you would think that some real respect for parking limits would exist. Unfortunately, though, we know that this is not the case.

However, even with absolute enforcement, there are certain limitations upon the effectiveness of our present system. First of all, tires can not be chalked in wet or wintry weather. Then, too, cars can still be moved a few feet forward or onto a nearby spot. Another difficulty is that owners can still allow their cars to remain for another hour or two when they find that their tires are not yet marked. All of these faults and methods of evasion are eliminated by the use of parking meters.

Another feature that appeals to your committee is that a town like Zanesville reports that one patrolman can now completely cover a metered section that formerly required four or five men. El Paso, Texas, uses two police to regulate a business area that was once checked by twelve men.

Meters will also increase the number of available parking spots. They are usually spaced at 20-foot intervals, and thus prevent a man from "hogging" 25 to 35 feet of curb space. In like fashion, they will stop bumper-to-bumper parking which so often makes it difficult or impossible for us to get in and out.

Where meters are installed, it is said that parking spaces are always available, due to the fact that "turnover" is vastly increased. The cars that are parked at a meter are not owned by half-day or all-day parkers—they are owned by people who have a half hour or an hour of shopping to do and then leave.

It is the belief of the committee that one of the meter's greatest virtues is that its installation will encourage the fuller use of existing parking lots and bring about the creation of new ones.

After all, this is the real need, for by this time we know that there is not enough room at the curb for the thousands of people who must come downtown every day.

One thing not generally realized about meters is that a dial shows the time remaining on the last coin. This means that oftentimes two or three short-time stops will be made on the same nickel. There are other types of meters which allow ten minutes of free time, and some where a penny will allow you twelve minutes, or an hour for a nickel.

The expense, therefore, is not burdensome and is undoubtedly cheaper than driving for blocks, banging fenders, hooking bumpers, etc.

Toledo, Youngstown, and Zanesville have meters, and Columbus and Cleveland have decided on their purchase. Their use is spreading throughout the country, and their record so far is an impressive one. As a universal rule, meters are generally opposed by certain groups, but after they are installed the merchant finds that it is easier for his customers to shop, and that his business has improved. The public likewise is pleased with the new convenience of parking near their destination without the wasted time and expense of looking for a place to park.

The committee realizes that meters are no "cure all" for every problem, but does feel that in certain areas they would help us tremendously. Before making their final recommendation, however, these men would appreciate your comments and experience on this form of parking control.

(Another article, dealing with another phase of the city's traffic control problem, will appear next week.)

store. Winbigler said he heard the door slam and saw the youth run diagonally across Main street toward the northeast.

Residents along Water avenue, near the scene of the robbery told police they saw a man running down the street toward the north at about the time the robbery occurred. Jack Love, filling station operator on East Whitney avenue near where Washington street joins Whitney avenue, said he heard a car start up and race away from that vicinity.

An attendant of a filling station near the city limits on Mansfield avenue said that about 8:40 p. m., he heard a car going at a high rate of speed toward Mansfield on route 39.

Neighboring cities and the state patrol were notified of the robbery by radio by Police Chief Leroy Coffey.

Police said they believed the gunman was the same one who attempted to rob the assistant manager of the Samilson store in Mansfield yesterday afternoon.

Winbigler described the youth as being about 22 years old, medium weight of approximately 165 pounds, dark hair, long face, heavy eyebrows. He talked with a deep voice, was wearing a greyish jacket and grey trousers.

BRITISH BOMBS RAKING SEAPORT HELD BY NAZIS

Invasion of Sweden Expected Soon, Allies Bid for Jap 'Benevolent Neutrality.'

tion of Sweden had become the "dark side" of the Sandinavian war situation and that "important events appeared imminent." It was suggested Germany might invade Sweden.

The British also heard Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon present a financial report on the war to a cheering house of commons. He said that Britain's war expenditure for the first seven months amounted to 905,000,000 pounds (about $3,167,000,000).

This indicated an annual expenditure of about 1,500,000,000 pounds, he said, but estimated that by next March 31, Britain's expenditure for war purposes alone would be 2,000,000,000 pounds a year.

Sir John said that Britain's first year at war cost less than was expected and that income exceeded estimates as a result of large yields from tax boosts authorized by his September budget, just after the war began.

First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, from whom a first-hand report on events in Scandinavia had been expected, cancelled a scheduled speech because of "the pressure of work."

Meanwhile the government issued a statement listing 24 German warship "casualties" since the start of the war, not counting "a large number" of submarines, and compared this with only 18 British warships sunk, including five submarines and an armed merchantman.

Britons also were told that their five new 35,000-ton battleships, which are to be put into action soon, would be the largest and most powerful in the world, and that they were undergoing tests.

As against the British claims of successes against German ships, Berlin said today that 14 British transports and war vessels had been sunk or damaged off Norway by Nazi bombers in the last 48 hours.

The Germans said on Sunday that since the Scandinavian war had started, Britain had lost five cruisers, ten destroyers and eight submarines sunk, one cruiser beached, and had suffered severe damage on four battleships, seven battle and heavy cruiser, one light cruiser and one airplane carrier.

British and French economic warfare experts were working on a plan to extend their economic blockade of Germany to the skies to apply to neutral airlines which, they have heard, are carrying large quantities of contraband into the territory of their enemy.

Britain and Germany were waging a diplomatic battle half way around the world, with both countries trying to enlist the aid of Japan. The British were said to have "hinted at amazing concessions" in return for a "benevolent neutrality."

United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew made representations to the Japanese foreign office in Tokyo charging that Americans at the North China port of Tientsin were suffering hardships as a result of the tightening of the Japanese blockade of the British and French concessions there.

PORTRAIT OF A HAPPY FAMILY

They've just made a big decision—a happy one in what it meant to them in pleasure and comfort and thrift—and they made it carefully and sensibly.

They bought a new car—a new 1940 Plymouth.

They considered "All 3" low-priced cars. They found, at the Plymouth salesroom in chart form, a clear picture of what each low-priced car offers.

They saw that of 22 features in high-priced cars, Plymouth offered them 21, compared to 11 and 8 for the "other two" low-priced cars.

And they discovered Plymouth's Luxury Ride was just as revealing—just as conclusive.

See the Quality Chart at your Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer's—and take the Luxury Ride.

Another Ohioan Rolls Perfect Game In ABA

DETROIT—(AP)—Precedents on both sides of the scoring ledger are being shattered in the current American Bowling Congress tournament.

* * *

The 62-day pin marathon, entering the final two weeks, has produced scores generally lower than those posted in other recent tournaments, yet perfect-game records have come crashing down.

Yesterday Angelo "Mike" Domenico, 27-year-old steel worker of Canton, O., threaded 12 strikes for the eighth perfect game in the history of the classic.

It marked the first time that two 300 games had been registered in one A. B. C. tourney. It also started a new "legend" concerning the ability of Ohio keglers, since four of the eight men who have shot perfect games in the A. B. C. hail from Ohio, one each from Akron, Canton, Conneaut and Kent.

In addition, four of the perfect games were rolled in tournaments held in Ohio. Toledo produced two of these, and Columbus and Cleveland one each.

Incidently, Domenico and George Pallage, the Akron kegler who hit the 300 mark here a week ago, have reduced the odds against a perfect A. B. C. game to a mere 270,000 to one. The eight perfect games have developed out of approximately 2,160,000 games rolled in tournaments from 1901 to 1940.

Only one modest change was recorded among the leaders yesterday. Karl Scharlo and Joseph Caron of Canton, O., rolled into on eighth-place tie in the doubles on a count of 1,283.

Domenico has been bowling for eight years. He carries a 200 everage in the Canton league. Previous perfect games in A. B. C. competition were recorded by Michael Blazek of Conneaut and William McGeorge of Kent.

Among the first to congratulate the short stocky Canton bowler was his wife, Rallie, who declared she felt confident that Mike would turn the trick after he found the range for strikes on both alley 13 and 14.

Domenico shot a 297 game on the home drives early this year and his wife insisted that he forgot to turn the ball over on the final toss. She said 'I knew that he would turn that ball over this time on the twelfth shot."

Defeating the favored Elizabeth Hicks in a grand comeback, Mrs. James Ferris, above, is winner of the California state women's golf tournament at Lakeside and now looms as a possible threat to national golf titleholder, Betty Jameson.

Change Of Scenery Restores Confidence In Dick Bartell

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—A change of scenery is the best remedy in the business for a ball layer who's lost his confidence and already it has worked a major miracle for rowdy Dick Bartell.

* * *

Bartell was hooted out of the national league last season. Every time a ball was hit his way the crowd roared, "another boot for Bartell!" He was a colossal flop as shortstop for the Chicago Cubs and he's glad to get away—except for one thing.

"It's great to be with Detroit, but I'd like to have had one more year with the Cubs," he said. "I still think I can play good ball in this town. I deserve quite a bit of the booing I took last year, but I'd just like to show 'em I'm not that bad."

You wouldn't know him now. As shortstop for the Tigers, he is everything the Cubs thought he'd be last season—and wasn't. He's off to a flying start, once more the hustling sure-footed Bartell who played consistant ball for Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and New York before ending his national league days with the Cubs.

He made a hit with Detroit fans in his first home appearance with a near-sensational job of fielding. He hasn't made an error this season and although that's only five games he didn't have many five game errorless stretches last season.

"I was trying too hard last season," Dick admitted. "I knew it. Everybody knew it. I did everything I could to settle down but it didn't do any good.

The Cubs were anxious to get Bartell. They insisted he be included in the deal for Hank Leiber and anxious as they were to land big Hank, they wouldn't take him without Bartell.

* * *

That put Dick on the spot. The Cubs had given up one of the best fielding shortstops in the game—Bill Jurges—in that deal. Bartell was branded as washed-up before he started. An ankle injury led to reports that his arthritis was back again, he got off to a late start, played before he was ready and never hit it off.

On Wagon

Proudly proclaiming he has not had one drink of intoxicating beverage in more than a year, Ralston Hemsley, first-string catcher of the Cleveland Indians and onetime baseball playboy, says a group of reformed alcoholics cured him of the habit.

MAXIN STILL WINS

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Joe Maxin, Cleveland's National A. A. U. middleweight champion, last night added another victory to his string by defeating Joe Mielcarek, Lorain Golden Gloves champion, in the feature attraction of the Cleveland traffic club's eight bout program.

OLSON GETS POST

LINCOLN, Neb. — (AP) — The appointment of H. G. Olson, Ohio State cage mentor, as chairman of the National Basketball Coaches association tournament and Olympics committee was announced yesterday by W. H. Browne, University of Nebraska coach and association secretary-treasurer.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A third-round knockout over Tom Kenneally of Chicago kept Jack "Buddy" Walker's professional boxing record intact today. The Columbus negro heavyweight last night floored Kenneally with a right cross to the head in a bout scheduled for 10 rounds. It was Walker's 18th victory.

Rain, Cold Weather Cost Majors $500,000

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Twelve consecutive days of rain and cold weather have cost the major leagues at least $500,000, it was estimated today.

There have been 28 postponements in the two leagues during the first week of the 1940 season and according to all available records, this year's opening weather has been the worst since 1933.

The New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers have lost most of the heavy sugar. The Yankees complain they paid cash for every raindrop that fell on the stadium, $60,000 to $70,000 going down the drain pipe with the washouts on Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Secretary John McDonald of the Dodgers stated that Brooklyn lost at least $60,000 when the Saturday and Sunday contests with the Giants went overboard.

The Yanks and Dodgers, who rivided a $46,000 plum last year in their week-end exhibitions just before the season's opening, split up only $10,000 this "spring" because the rain drowned their series at Ebbets field, trimming the three-game set to one game.

Spring training expenses left several of the clubs short of ready cash but the eastern clubs in the National League have taken the heaviest blow, with only three games played at Boston, New York and Brooklyn. Four straight postponements have so far prevented the Phils from playing their opener at home. Pittsburgh finally got past its inaugural yesterday after three straight failures and drew only $10,461.

The American League, with only 11 postponements to the National's 17, is way ahead in attendance, having played to nearly 235,000 while the rival league has seated 148,226 for 11 games.

With Walter O. Briggs, Detroit Tigers' owner, as chief cheerleader, a campaign to shorten the baseball season a couple of weeks has been received. Briggs want to cut the season from 154 to 140 games, starting the schedule a week later and ending a week sooner. And when the major league pocketbooks get rapped as regularly as the No. 1 pin in a bowling alley, the magnates usually sit up and call for lucid thinking. The end of the season may find a definite schedule curtailment in store for 1941.

Mudhens Like Being On Top

Toledo Team Takes Three Out of Four.

(By Associated Press)

Maybe Toledo's early season success can't last but at least the Mudhens are enjoying being in first place after so much time far down in the American Association.

Last year's cellar crew, bolstered by several ex-major leaguers, are at the head of the parade with three victories in four games, a half a game ahead of Kansas City, Indianapolis and Louisville.

Long Harry Kimberlin notched the Hens' third triumph yesterday when he set Milwaukee down with four hits for a 4-2 decision.

Indianapolis moved into the second place deadlock by virtue of frail Bob Logan's three-hitter against Minneapolis. The victors got only six hits off Elon Hogsett and Joe Gonzales.

Louisville spotted St. Paul three runs in the second inning and then battered four pitchers for 14 hits and a 9 to 6 victory.

Kansas City and Columbus were not scheduled.

EQUIPMENT DESTROYED

MADISON, Wis.—(INS)—Several thousand dollars worth of football and baseball equipment today was believed to have been destroyed by fire which burned for more than an hour in the University of Wisconsin equipment quarters last night.

PLAY YANKEE CLUB

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Akron Yankees of the Mid Atlantic league and the Toledo Mud Hens of the American association appear on the New York Yankees' seven-game exhibition schedule this season. The Yankees meet Akron May 13 and Toledo July 29.

BOWMAN WINS MEET

Bowman finished first in the Grade school triangular meet at Stadium field yesterday. The Bowman team scored 42½ points, Bushnell 18½ and Prospect 1.

GIRLS' TEAM PRACTICES

Mansfield's Merchant Girls softball team is scheduled to hold an indoor practice session in the Salvation Army gymnasium at 8:00 o'clock this evening.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The major league ball season will start any day now. . . . The barons figure the foul weather has cost them a cool half million to date. . . . Some hot news soon may pop out of the N. C. A. A.'s Chicago headquarters on the athletics mess in the collitches. . . . Southern California is fixing to invite Detroit, Cincinnati, Brooklyn and maybe Cleveland to train out there next spring.

IT CAN HAPPEN HERE.

WPA workers shoveled snow off the courts so Walter Senior, Lawrence college tennis coach, and Morey Lewis, Canadian champ, could play an exhibition Sunday. . . . Whitey Kurowski, the Rochester ball player, to whom the sports writers always refer to as a veteran, was 22 the other day. . . . Umpire Bill Klem tunes up his adenoids each spring by going into the woods and calling balls and strikes on the squirrels. . . . Bob Ingalls wil play center for Michigan this fall wearing spectacles.

St. Paul fans are howling about that Collier's piece which has Lee Savold chasing Joe Louis out of the ring in two years. . . . They wonder if it's the same Lee Savold they stopped paying $1.10 to see a few months back.

6,000 to Participate In Women's Meet

CHICAGO—(INS)—Six thousand women will participate in the Women's International Bowling congress twenty-fifth annual national tournament opening here next Thursday, it was announced today.

Mrs. Emma Phaler of Columbus, O., secretary of the W. L. B. C., said that 1,185 five-member teams—twice as many as last year—will compete. In addition to rolling on teams of five, the women will be divided up into 1,286 doubles aggregations, and 2,491 will roll for individual honors. Mrs. Phaler predicted a set of new records for the 1940 tournament.

Some Run---Only 10,000 Miles!

Off on a 10,000-mile (yes, we said mile) run around the United States, Woodrow Wilson Woodruff, 21-year-old "Tarzan" of New Orleans, La., is shown in Wichita, Kan., with City Manager Alfred MacDonald, left, and Raymond Dumont, president of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress. Woodruff will carry letters of greeting from Dumont to officials of state semi-pro tourneys and hopes to complete his run Aug. 16.

DEFENDS TITLE

NEW ORLEANS—(U.P.)—Jimmy Perrin will defend the Louisiana Athletic commission's version of the world's featherweight championship May 8 in a 15-round decision bout against Irish Bobby Ruffin of New York, it was announced today.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Charles Bidwill, owner of the Chicago Cardinals, announced yesterday that he had leased Comiskey park for all the home games of his national football league team this fall.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 23, 1940.

A careful check-up reveals that, in spite of appearances, there are still more voters than candidates.

Mr. Farley accuses the G. O. P. of facing both ways—and it's certainly a good time to be looking in all directions.

With a 38-year-old candidate for president and a 33-year-old convention key-noter, the G. O. P. may have decided that youth could do no worse.

Tokyo and East Indies

SECRETARY HULL'S statement about preserving the territorial status quo in the East Indies has had curiously contradictory effects in Japan. The government there promptly said it agreed with ours, and Japan had no territorial designs whatever in that region. But the Japanese press had a brainstorm.

Tokyo newspapers declared that the United States and Japan had entirely different ideas about the status of the Netherlands East Indies, and censured Secretary Hull for his "hands-off" policy. The treaties that Japan has signed in former years, for preserving the status quo in the Far East, they say, are "manifestly incompatible with the Japanese viewpoint." They insist that there must be a new order in that region, as in the whole world. Otherwise "no peace can be expected."

And who must establish the new order? One guess is enough. "No doubt," says the newspaper Hochi, "the Hull statement was intended as a political move to restrain Japan's southward expansion, but the United States should know that such an attempt would only inflame the Japanese."

The Japanese, as represented by their newspapers, seem to get inflamed too easily and often. And it would be a much simpler problem if their press and government didn't contradict each other in such matters.

America's Friendly Borders

SPRING is here and summer is coming. Soon millions of Americans, or maybe tens of millions, will be on the way hither and yon, vacationing and having a wonderful time in spite of politics, war, unemployment and everything else. Folks will be rampaging east, west, north and south, traveling thousands of miles by train and airplane and millions of miles by automobile. And we'll be as free as ever to go where we please, do what we like, look at whatever we want to look at, and say what we feel like saying to anybody about anything.

Even those millions who may cross our northern border and sojourn among a people at war will feel little of the pressure and suffocation that there is everywhere across the Atlantic. For Canadians have our kind of civilization, and we can understand each other and enjoy our holidays without restraint.

In these two countries we have a place bigger than all Europe to play in, without figuring on the Central and South American republics where we are also welcome. There is every kind of climate and soil and scenery anybody could want, and the most refreshing thing of all is the atmosphere of freedom all over this part of the world.

Newspaper Achievements

AMERICAN newspaper editors meeting last week in Washington paid homage to papers which have exposed "public wrongs" and, through Donald J. Sterling of the Oregon Journal, made this notable statement:

That the American press, in spite of financial difficulties in recent years, "is still solvent and free, responsible and decent, greater in scope of service. 42 per cent more widely read daily and 84 per cent more on Sunday than it was twenty years ago."

They might fairly have added, even while admitting the high merits of the British and Canadian press, that the American newspaper is incomparably ahead of all the rest of the world in completeness, accuracy and honesty of news coverage and all-round press services.

Collection Plan Upheld

A COMMON PLEAS court decision of quite general Mansfield interest is to the effect that the city is within its rights in collecting water and sewer rental charges together and that water service may be discontinued for non-payment of sewer rental.

This subject has been much discussed since the sewer rental charge was put into effect several years ago as a means of securing funds for operation of the sewage disposal plant.

It had been assumed by many that the legality of the procedure had already been passed upon by Ohio courts but the case just decided indicates the contrary. In any event the common pleas decision stands as law, unless later reversed by higher courts.

Musical Message of Goodwill

SOUTH AMERICANS this summer are promised not only an earful of music but an eyeful of musicians from North America. Arturo Toscanini is taking the National Broadcasting company's symphony orchestra on a tour of cities down that way. They will give sixteen concerts in June and July in Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay.

Conductor Leopold Stokowski's proposed tour will be of a different type. His orchestra will be composed of promising young musicians, not a seasoned group. It is less of a business venture than the other. Both, it is hoped, will promote good will and understanding and will be followed by other musical exchanges.

More Cheese Being Eaten

THE National Dairy Council says the per capita consumption of cheese in this country was 5.75 pounds in 1938. That was more than twice as much cheese as our parents and grandparents ate.

A great deal of excellent cheese is made in the United States now, including many of the types formerly obtainable only from certain regions abroad.

The growing enthusiasm for cheese is a wholesome one. This tasty food is the most concentrated source of the highest quality proteins. It is rich in calcium, phosphorus, and vitamin A. Its iron content, though small, is in an easily assimilated form. It is among the inexpensive foods, and one with so many different tastes and textures and uses that there is no monotony in its frequent appearance at lunch and dinner.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—George Balanchine is a thin, slight Russian with enough hair on his head to cover half the baldness of Moscow. Were he to comb the hair on the right side of his head straight back and bring it around behind his head it would drape over his left ear. When he leaps onto a stage to instruct his underlings in the finesse of tap and ballet routines, it dangles beneath his chin. One of his mannerisms is a sort of nervous reaching of this hair with his long, thin dancer's hands.

Balanchine is not an easy man to talk to. Perhaps it is because he speaks English, but badly. His accent is difficult to follow. And at rehearsals, which are the only times I have encountered him, his mind is too suffused with visions of the dance to permit him to indulge in very much small talk.

* * *

IT MAY be that you remember a show in New York a couple of years ago called "I Married An Angel." Balanchine directed it. He now is directing the dancing for Lee Shubert and Harry Kaufman in "Keep Off the Grass." In "I Married An Angel" was a girl who became more nearly a toast of New York than has any girl in recent years, with the possible exception of Mary Martin, the Texas "Daddy" girl. Her name was Zorina. Balanchine met her and married her.

"How is he?" I asked Kaufman at the Broadhurst theater during the early morning rehearsals.

Kaufman grunted and said, "After four years on Broadway a lot of that artistic stuff has been knocked off him, and he is down to earth. Watch him work."

Balanchine was on the stage, giving each member of the chorus personal instruction. He was dancing with each individual and all but marking the places on the stage where they were to step. They were apt pupils. They caught on fast. But it is Balanchine's reputation that any dancer under his instruction catches on fast.

While this nervous, intense Russian was bringing some order out of chaos, another director, a carrot-topped Irishman with a cleft chin, was similarly engaged in another theater a few blocks away. This was Edward Duryea Dowling, not to be confused with Eddie Dowling, the star of "The Time of Your Life."

Director Dowling had in tow Jimmy Durante, who arrived with a black shirt and a turned-up brown felt, plus a cigar between his teeth, and the droll, long-necked Ray Bolger, whose collars seem to be at least four inches high. I imagine Bolger is the highest priced man in the show ($2,000 weekly), although this is not verified.

WHEN Dowling takes an actor through a scene he stands up with him like a best man at a wedding. Some directors like to bawl their instructions from the orchestra pit. Others float into and out of scenes, insinuating their suggestions. Dowling takes it step for step, line for line. One scene, in which Bolger plays the part of a timid census taker, he got perfectly on the first reading. None of the others was so fortunate. I commented on this and some unidentified observer interpolated, "Sure, he's an artist; it is only after this that he's an actor and a dancer."

Broadway shows come together much in the manner of many-jointed snakes that have been hacked into a thousand pieces and then reunited. "Keep Off The Grass" is backed by energy, money and talent. But money in the theater was never a certificate of success. The answer won't be known until the first audience files out and the critics write their opinions.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, April 28, 1920.

First issue of "The Rooster" appeared as monthly publication of Aultman & Taylor employes.

Junior-Senior reception was held at high school, with presentation of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" as a feature. (Some of the participants should recall this.)

Surprise party was given for Mrs. H. B. DeWitt, 215 Sturges avenue, on her birthday anniversary.

Price of hay in Mansfield reached new high of $35 a ton.

Y. M. C. A. closed successful season of night school sessions.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, April 28, 1935.

Announcement was made of the date, May 1, at which time the new Dominion plant would be in operation.

Fred Wolf spoke before Rotary club members, telling of a recent trip around the world.

Charles C. Botzer, 73, died.

John Weil and C. Allen Boughton were in Columbus to attend the 50th anniversary meeting of the Ohio State Archeological and Historical societies.

Daughter born to Mr. and Mrs. N. S. White, Parkview street.

Daily Bible Thought

And they rose early in the morning, and went forth into the wilderness of Tekoa: and as they went forth, Jehoshaphat stood, and said, Hear me, O Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem. Believe in the Lord your God, so shall ye be established; believe his prophets, so shall ye prosper. —2 Chronicles 20:20.

Teamwork Helps In Fight On Cancer.

—By DR. CLENDENING

THE American society in charge of the campaign for Cancer Control Month, which has been provided by Congress for April of this year, has called attention to three necessary divisions of our activities in the fight on this disease. In previous articles this month I have stressed the importance of education of the public as one of these methods of attack, and of research in cancer as another.

The third form of attack is the application of known methods of treatment. If the educated public will take advantage of these methods discovered by research in the past, most cases can now be cured. It need be no longer the dread disease which in popular estimation it once was.

Group Study.

As our knowledge of cancer has increased, it has become clear that in many cases the most successful handling of the patient comes only after one or more conferences between surgeons, radiologists, pathologists, internists and other specialists.

The need of microscopic study of tumor tissue and the growing frequency of combined use of x-rays and surgery, or for choosing wisely between them, form the main reasons why such group activity is an all-important development in the fight against cancer.

In its early stages cancer is usually confined to a small area. This fact accounts for the success of treatment at such stages.

Modern Approach.

It might be a lump or an ulceration of the skin, or a rough spot on the skin. If small, the surgeon can remove it. He hands this piece of tissue to his colleague, the pathologist, who makes a section of it with a razor-blade cutting machine (microtome), stains the thin tissue and puts it under the microscope. This man—the pathologist—determines what type of cancer tissue it is; and whether the surgeon has removed the entire growth. He then consults the surgeon and the x-ray man to determine whether in the light of the nature of the growth it should be submitted to x-ray or possibly to further surgery. If it is on the skin, the specialist on skin is called in; if in the female organs, the gynecologist; and their advice is taken on the basis of their wide and special experience.

Follow-Up Work.

Particularly important is that some physician in the group should undertake the follow-up work. He should examine the patient at least once every three months for the first year after the initial treatment, and once every six months for five or six years, if any dangerous symptom arises and further treatment may become necessary, the original treatment is repeated, at least in principle.

This teamwork or group-attack is the key to the modern, successful treatment.

TODAY IN HISTORY

William Shakespeare, greatest of all poets and dramatists, was born on April 23, 1564. Perhaps more has been written about this master of literature than about any other figure in letters.

Listen, World!

Speaking of Short Skirts

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

E. V. DURLING—grand columnist! But what a hound that boy is for punishment! Does he go crashing in to any of the ordinary mortal risks such as death by fire, flood or the electric chair? Not E. V. He wants a special and spectacular suicide. So he tackles—of all things!—the current mode of WOMEN'S SHORT SKIRTS!

Says right out loud in public print that if you haven't got the proper underpinnings, sister, you'd better lengthen your hems. And gets the following response from one of the Mad Mamas.

"Listen, you almost perfect example of male ignorance, a woman who hasn't limbs a la Dietrich, of which type I am one, cannot buy a long skirt. The stores don't sell them. You ask for a long skirt and they show you something similar to a ballet skirt. Why? That's the style, say they. And no matter what nature has given you in the way of legs you've got to be in style and like it, say they."

All right, E. V., you asked for it! Nevertheless, as one who admires your nerve—and isn't so keen herself on all this promiscuous shinshow—I'm coming to your defense. So here, sisters, is where you get it from one of the union. The old ankle can still stand a 16-inch hem, if I do say it myself. But even if it can stand it, it isn't getting it. For I just happen to be topped at the other end by an equally agile bean that refuses to be regimented by any fashion dictator.

"You've got to be in style," says you.

For Pete's sake, why? And whose style?

Suppose you gotta couple of knees like Monday's soup bones. Is that any reason you must exhibit them to every wandering breeze—not to mention the Livery Stable Boys? And if you happen to have a waist like Tug Boat Annie's, need you go around wearing Junior's sun suit, merely because some smart salesgirl sells you a phoney bill of goods? No, you needn't . . . and if you do you're just making a spectacle of yourself, sister, and getting the snicker on the side you deserve.

American fashions are the finest and most sensible in the world. There is latitude in them for every woman's stowage and displacement. You don't have to take "what they give you to be stylish." You can choose clothes suited to your age, girth and gait—if you wish. And be as charming and well-groomed as any woman in the picture.

But the trouble is that most of you girls don't want something suited to your age—or avoirdupois. You've got a yen to be a Shirley Temple, a Jeast, or a Vivien Leigh. So you go out and buy yourself something that suits this dream fantasy—and then blame it on the Women's Garment Department.

I doubt if there is any similar or more inconsistent spectacle on earth than the deliberate, voluntary fashion and beauty regimentation of American women. No women on earth have more freedom and privileges than we Americans—or yell about 'em louder. Yet we dress our hair and shapes as if we were in a European concentration camp, under military orders to look like a lot of robots—or else.

If one of us wears curls, we all wear curls, whether our faces resemble marshmallows or a strip of macadam. If one of us wears a pink sweater, we all don pink sweaters, even though, in our struggles, the wool baas in agony.

So there's the low-down on your fashion fret, sweetheart. And the next time you try to kid a male columnist, just be sure a female one isn't listening in.

Timely Editorial

American Mother of 1940.

Americans will be quick to approve the selection of Mrs. Edith Graham Mayo, widow of Dr. Charles H. Mayo, as the American Mother of 1940. The title will be conferred upon her Mother's day in connection with the program of the Golden Rule Foundation.

Mrs. Mayo has living one son who is a surgeon and four daughters. She also has an adopted daughter and a foster son. Mrs. Mayo had hospital training before her marriage and worked with her husband in many of the projects of the Mayo Clinic. She has been one of the outstanding leaders in her community. The honor will be a most fitting recognition of the contributions of a great woman who bears a noted name.—Toledo Blade.

As Others See It

This Explains It.

A dictator assumes that the people haven't sense enough to take care of themselves. So he takes care of them—and how!—Toledo Blade.

Question Is Raised.

One often hears references to the average man, but seldom, if ever, to the average woman. Is there such a creature as an average woman?—Buffalo News.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—In order to understand how the Nazis staged their "Trojan Horse" invasion of Norway, it is necessary to get an inside view of the Norwegian political picture.

Secret of the Nazi success was a serious rift between the Labor government ruling Norway and Norwegian big business. The situation was not unlike the bitter row which has existed between the Roosevelt New Deal and American big business.

Norwegian business men, while not exactly pro-Nazi, toyed with the hope that Germany might rescue them from a Labor government, which they had been unable to overthrow at the ballot box.

It is doubtful whether the great mass of Norwegian business men would have favored an outright occupation by Germany, but according to official reports cabled here, they seemed to have the idea that after turning out the Labor government, Hitler would restore Norway to conservative rule.

There was also a powerful clique within the Norwegian army which was even more strongly pro-Nazi. Norway's army is not large, consisting chiefly of a militia officered in part by business and professional men not in sympathy with Labor.

They argued that since Labor had spent so much money on social welfare and neglected national defense, the Labor government could take the consequences. These were the officers whom the Nazis induced to keep their men out of the way when German troops first landed.

Note—Unlike Norway, Sweden enjoys a social-democrat or pro-labor government in which there is a very genuine and whole-hearted cooperation between labor and business.

Dutch Predicament.

FOR some time the political situation in the Netherlands has been somewhat similar to that in Norway.

Holland is in the hands of a coalition government with so-called New Deal leanings, although not as liberal as the Roosevelt Administration. Big business in Holland and the Queen herself are not particularly in sympathy with the government, and there was a time when conservative business opinion was strongly for yielding to the Germans in case of an invasion, rather than staging a fight which would ruin most of Holland. Even the Queen was known to subscribe to this policy.

But with the occupation of Denmark and Norway, sentiment in Holland is changing. There still exists some argument among big business men that it would be far better to yield and do business under Germany.

Furthermore, the Queen still is surrounded by Germans and pro-Nazis who hold up Hitlerism as the acme of government. However, the Queen has veered somewhat toward the views of her New Deal government, and it may be that Holland will put up considerable resistance if and when Hitler attacks.

Dewey Backers Taboo.

IT WAS only by a hair's-breadth that Roosevelt missed lending support to the Dewey candidacy by naming one of Dewey's principal backers to an important government commission.

The appointment was to the Inter-American Commission to promote new trade projects between North and South America. Sumner Welles sent the White House two names for the two U. S. places on the joint commission.

One was Warren Lee Pierson, president of the U. S. Export-Import Bank, and the other Samuel Sloan Colt, president of the Bankers Trust Company, director of Pan American Airways, Royal-Exchange Assurance, Provident Insurance, American Bank Note, and even of Ambassador Joe Davies' and wife's General Foods Corporation.

Possibly even more important, Colt is a former schoolmate of Sumner Welles at Groton, which the president also attended. So the appointments were about to go through, when suddenly a presidential adviser pointed out that Colt, a Republican, was a strong backer of Tom Dewey.

Result was a complete switch. The president immediately threw out both nominations, even though recommended by his good friend Welles. Instead he named Under Secretary of Commerce Noble and G. W. Magalhaes, vice president of Westinghouse Electric International.

Note—The work of the commission is to carry out a plan originally developed by Chile's forceful Carlos Davila, but from which Davila withdrew when his own government, involved in political feuds, failed to support him.

Roosevelt and Navy.

FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT long has been considered the best friend of the navy. It has been his passion throughout life. At the age of 14 he was reading Admiral Mahan, toughest technician on naval problems. At 30 he was assistant secretary of the navy. As president he has boosted naval appropriations more than any other executive.

However, the big secret which did not leak out of the White House naval conference the other day was that it was Roosevelt himself who blocked the admirals' plan of a 25 per cent increase in naval construction.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and House Naval Affairs Chairman Carl Vinson were strong for the increase, and everyone took it for granted that Roosevelt was, too. In fact, he had requested Vinson to introduce the 25 per cent expansion bill at the opening of congress.

Further, when Vinson's committee balked at this figure and cut it to 11 per cent, the president emphatically declared, "I was for a 25 per cent increase and I still am."

But that was several weeks ago. At last week's conference, much to the surprise of Stark and Vinson, Roosevelt sided with Senate Naval Affairs Chairman David I. Walsh for an 11 per cent naval increase. Bewildered, Vinson asked for an explanation.

Replying, the president said that he hadn't changed his mind on the necessity for a 25 per cent naval boost, but he had reached the opinion that for psychological reasons it was unwise to push for that amount this year. The country might become fearful that the administration was rushing preparations for war. Also, so great an increase concentrated too much money on national defense to the detriment of domestic needs.

Roosevelt also said he agreed with Senator Walsh's argument that there were not enough shipbuilding facilities to handle a 25 per cent increase during a four-year period. Before such a plan could be inaugurated, steps had to be taken to expand building equipment.

"Let's take the 11 per cent now," Roosevelt said, in effect, "and if more is needed it can be asked for next year. In that way we can show the country that we're not overdoing things, and yet at the same time moving ahead steadily to build up a navy adequate for our national defense in the face of changing conditions abroad."

Baby Chicks

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A HATCHERY MAN of our town claims that Wyandottes are the most profitable chicken." He has a bold sign to that effect upon his place of business, with a painting of a bird as big as an ostrich. Big ideas always did appeal to me. I am going to try a flock of Wyandottes. As to the profitable part, I'll tell you later.

The week-old chicks arrived before our preparations were complete, and spent their first night here upon the living room table in the delivery pullmans. We have lined a shed nine feet square with black sheathing paper and built two homemade batteries six feet long and a yard wide from hardware cloth—half-inch mesh. Each battery has a division through the middle and there are 75 chickens in each compartment. They are fastened to the wall at eye level—for easier heating—and warmth is furnished for the whole room from a hard coal burner in the center. Strawy litter beneath the batteries catches the droppings. A piece of eave-spouting along the front, with headholes, invites feeding without waste. Water is held there too—I had a tinner make divisions in the spouting. Upon this mesh, chicks cannot huddle or crowd to the point of suffocation. Within six weeks we hope to turn them out on range in a lot where we are planting special lettuce.

The chicks are a lively lot, with traces of new wing feathers already. It is warm and cozy—80 to 90 degrees—in the dark square shed. I like to stand and watch the row of downy yellow heads pecking busily away, or tipping back their heads to let the warm water run down. Then, with full craw, each little fellow gives his new wings an exuberant flop, jumps as high as his own head, and cuddles down among the others or sleeps, squatted where he is, until he is hungry again.

I sneezed. There was a pattering rush of tiny feet across the wires, then stillness, while each beady-eyed youngster halted in his tracks to see if I would do it again. When I did not, they resumed their gentle, contented routine. A man would not need a thermometer for long—he could soon read the language of his chicks.

The brooder room door has a loosely hung "button" on the outside, and a short chain hooked over a nail within. I pulled the door shut as I went in, and noticed, with satisfaction, that a thick layer of building paper made the crack at the edge air tight. When I went to leave, I could not. The button had fallen down and locked me in. My voice is strong. With no desire to spend the night among the chickens, I exercised my lung power. My wife heard me and grinned as she let me out.
